THREE HURT AT BEARVILLE — Three persons were injured and a motorist was cited by Kingston State Police early Sunday, after the car in which they were riding went out of control and crashed into a tree on Wittenberg Road, Bearville, Sergeant H. S. Rhodes of the State Police, said Marcheline Harris, 19, of P. O. Box, 61, Stone Ridge, was driving a 1960 convertible west on the road when the vehicle failed to negotiate a left curve. The driver was charged by Troopers Robert Mackey (left) and John McMickle with failing to keep to the right. Injured were the driver, who sustained a laceration of the right ear and abrasions of the legs; Charles Harris, 21, of Stone Ridge, possible head injuries; and Diana Munch, 17, of California Quarry Road, Woodstock, injuries of the nose. Doctor's ambulance took the injured to Benedictine Hospital.

Resnick Refutes Picket Story, Yerry Answers

The Democratic candidate for Congress for New York's 28th District, Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville today sought to clarify what he termed a "distorted statement" issued Friday by the Hudson Valley Building Trades Council.

The statement, issued by Council president George E. Yerry Jr. held that the Council was picketing the Channel Master plant at Ellenville.

It said the picketing was set up as a result of construction workers' being paid substandard wages on a job of building a new warehouse for the Channel Master firm.

Resnick said that the report was issued by Yerry for "political purposes." He added that Yerry, as a "labor advisor to the Governor" and "other Republicans" had perpetrated the incident to help block his chances for election in November.

In reply to Resnick's statement, Yerry said today that he is not an advisor to Governor Rockefeller. He added that he "had been selected by the majority of the labor unions in New York State to be chairman of their labor committee for the re-election of Governor Rockefeller."

Man Killed in Orange Among 24 on State Toll

A 26-year-old Orange County man killed at 5:45 p. m. Sunday, when his motorcycle went out of control and crashed into a utility pole in the Town of New Windsor, was among the 24 victims of weekend accidents in the state.

State Police said James Buxton of Landers Street, Newburgh, was pronounced dead at the scene. He apparently suffered a skull fracture and other head injuries.

Troopers reported Buxton was riding south on the River Road when he failed to negotiate a curve. He was thrown from the machine.

Orange County Coroner Harvey Agnew was at the scene to investigate with troopers from the New Windsor sub-station.

The Associated Press reported fatalities caused when two small boys crawled into an old refrigerator and an infant toddled on to railroad tracks to play.

Traffic accidents claimed 19 lives in the period from 6 p. m. Friday to midnight Sunday. One telegram dispatched Sunday—with Rockefeller's approval—by New York's two Republican national committee members to Goldwater's handpicked GOP national chairman, Dean Burch. Burch said in Washington that he had no immediate comment.

Mrs. Luce said in New York City that she would withdraw if Keating would declare his support for Goldwater, a move he has refused to make.

The committee members strongly protested plans, by the Conservative Party, which operates only in New York, to run candidates against Keating and 58 other Republicans seeking seats in Congress and the Legislature.

Describing the Conservatives as Goldwater's "most avid supporters in this state," the committee said: "If pursued, these moves... will alienate many Republicans from their national ticket and will, in logic and fact, effectively release all Republicans from any obligations to support that ticket in the November election."

The telegram was signed by George L. Hinman of Binghamton and Mrs. Dorothy McHugh. Hinman, a close friend and political advisor of Rockefeller, was the national contact man in the governor's unsuccessful bid for the presidential nomination.

A highly placed source said Rockefeller saw the telegram before it was sent and approved its content and tone.

Rocky Cites Barry

The telegram was dispatched less than 24 hours after the Conservative Party's state chairperson was drowned, and four were killed in other types of accidents.

The boys who suffocated in the refrigerator were George Mayerhofer, 7, and his brother, Joseph, 5, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mayerhofer. When they failed to answer the dinner bell Friday night at their home in Island Park, Nassau County, their mother sent another brother, Edward, 9, to look for them.

Later a general search was launched, and the bodies were found inside the refrigerator in the Mayerhofer garage. Police said the door apparently closed shut and imprisoned them.

The infant who played on the railroad tracks was Hallack Moscatier, one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moscatier of Blue Point, Suffolk County.

Police said he apparently wandered away from his home Sunday with a 2-year-old sister and was struck by a Long Island Railroad train as it roared through the Blue Point Station.

Platform Condemns Extremism

Demos Want Full CR Endorsement

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A Democratic party platform condemning extremism "including the extremist tactics of such organizations as the Communist Party, Ku Klux Klan and the John Birch Society" was getting its final polishing today.

The platform, as it now stands, also calls for "fair, effective enforcement" of the new Civil Rights Act.

The full Platform Committee met in executive sessions to pass on these recommendations, among others, from its executive panel.

Approval was predicted although the full committee could make changes. Members on both sides of the civil rights dispute said they thought that the plank would be approved without a floor fight.

Condemn Extremism

One proposed plank reads: "We condemn extremism, whether of the right or left, including the extremist tactics of such organizations as the Communist Party, Ku Klux Klan and the John Birch Society."

The key section of the proposed plank on civil rights says that the new law "deserves and requires full observance by every American and fair, effective enforcement if there is any default."

The plank also declares that "lawless disregard for the rights of others is wrong—whether used to deny equal rights or to obtain equal rights." It says lawlessness cannot be tolerated but, "we can and will seek to eliminate or correct its causes."

Skirt "Prayers"

The platform committee's executive panel, working late into the night, decided to avoid controversy on two other subjects simply by omitting them from the platform. These were the issues of legislative reapportionment and prayer in schools.

The full committee, which already has approved foreign affairs and national defense portions of the platform, was called into session to consider the final, domestic portion today. The convention has the last say, but committee approval almost certainly means acceptance of the platform with little or no debate by the delegates, who open the party's national convention tonight.

The committee is working closely with the White House, and is understood to be heading a plea by President Johnson to avoid convention floor battles. The civil rights plank, it was understood, contemplates federal enforcement of the rights guarantees when and if necessary, but also speaks up for law and order in language designed to please critics of recent racialy tinged riots.

Strike Threat

DETROIT (AP) — Walter P. Reuther, United Auto Workers Union President, said today there will be a strike in the auto industry if the Big Three "do not make a change quickly within their bargaining positions."

Reuther's comments came as he led a team of UAW negotiators into a session with General Motors, with the contract expiration date only a week away.

Reuther was to make similar appearances at Ford and Chrysler negotiations today as the UAW awaited its Wednesday decision on which company would be its No. 1 target.

Negro Delegations Sure to Walk Out

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Mississippi Negroes said "no compromise" and Alabama's white delegates shouted "no loyalty pledge" as Democrats searched for answers to the hot-test issues at their national convention.

Chances of keeping the Mississippi and Alabama disputes from bursting forth: upon the floor of the convention when it opens tonight appeared slim. The threat of a walkout by some Southern delegations remained a possibility.

Fails to Decide

The credentials committee failed to decide Sunday whether the largely Negro Mississippi Freedom Democratic delegation or the all-white regulars from that state should be seated. The committee resumes today its search for a solution it hopes will satisfy Southern states and Southern and Northern Negroes.

Dr. Aaron Henry, Negro chairman of the Freedom group from Clarksdale, Miss., said the group would not take a "back-of-the-bus" compromise.

Henry was backed by Dr. Martin Luther King who said "a natural reaction of Negro voters would be to go fishing election day" if the Freedom party is not seated. King heads the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Two civil rights organizations set up vigil in front of Convention Hall early today in support of the Freedom delegation. The organizations were the Congress of Racial Equality and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

Have Enough Votes

Henry and King said they had the votes in the credentials committee needed to force the issue onto the floor of the convention if the committee fails to give seats and votes to the Freedom delegation. There has been speculation that the committee, in an effort to satisfy the Negroes, would give them seats on the floor but no voice and no vote.

Henry and his Freedom party want to be seated because, they say, the regular Mississippi Democratic party will not support President Johnson, his vice presidential choice, or the national Democratic party. They also say the regular Democrats exclude Negroes from their ranks.

Future Is Dim For Former Boss Of Tammany Hall

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—The end of the political trail appeared at hand today for Carmine G. De Sapio, the one-time Tammany Hall chieftain who ruled the Democratic Party in New York State.

He was slated for replacement as national committee man, his only remaining political office, at a noon caucus of the New York delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

Democratic State Chairman William H. McKoon said De Sapio's likely successor was Edwin Weiss, a New York corporation lawyer described as President Johnson's closest friend in the Empire State.

De Sapio, smiling and affable, appeared nothing like a prospector for a "last hurrah" as he arrived Sunday night to be on hand for the caucus. But he said he would not fight to hold his post.

Backed Wagner

De Sapio rose to the political heights in New York when, as leader of Tammany, he spearheaded the election of Robert F. Wagner as mayor of New York City in 1953 and of W. Averell Harriman as governor in 1954.

Looks Out Toward Nov. Vote

Busy Day Before Opening Tonight

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The big LBJ roundup — the 1964 Democratic convention — opens tonight with President Johnson trying to herd it away from bruising North-South clashes.

The President, his own nomination to be a noisy formality Wednesday night, concentrated his efforts on keeping his ranks intact for November and thus was calling practically all the signals from Washington.

One signal he hasn't called, his choice of a running mate, but half a dozen hands were ready to jump at the ring. Still the most often mentioned number was that of the party's Senate whip, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

Day Bright, Warm

The day broke bright and warm. Thousands of delegates, alternates and their families mingled with sun-burned tourists along the storied boardwalk, faced on all sides with stalls of carnival souvenirs of Johnson and the late President John F. Kennedy.

As the sun rose, hundreds of red, white and blue bedecked volunteers for LBJ rallied on the ocean front to begin shaping up for their convention duties.

Behind the honky tonk tog the committees worked at shaping the convention and its platform into the broad harmony and unity design Johnson would like.

No Word on Peace

The word had gone down the line to avoid any explosive fight over a civil rights plank and to settle the controversy over the seating of contested Alabama and Mississippi delegations in a manner calculated to give the least offense to Southerners and the Negro-dominated delegation demanding seats from Mississippi.

Late Sunday night, the platform writers reached preliminary agreement or a call for enforcement of the new Civil Rights Act and on condemnation of political extremist tactics.

The credentials committee, headed by former Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania, ruled Alabama delegates would have to sign an oath of loyalty to the national party ticket if they wished to participate in the convention.

Quickly this group, selected under the auspices of segregationist Gov. George C. Wallace, rejected the demand. National Committeeman Eugene (Bull) Connor of Birmingham already had the delegation's convention credentials in hand and declined to surrender them.

Difficult Decision

A much more difficult decision faced the committee today. It promised to come to grips with the question of seating an all-white 23-vote unpledged delegation from Mississippi or the largely Negro Mississippi Freedom Democratic party group.

In another section of the civil rights front, the platform committee's executive committee

Wharton Says President Forgot Aged And Very Young in His Poverty Bill

Calling President Johnson's "Poverty Bill," one "conceived in last-minute political haste," Congressman J. Ernest Wharton (R), 28th District, in a statement to The Freeman explains why he was unable to support the bill.

Congressman Wharton states that the bill "completely ignores the aged and the very young, who constitute the largest group of needy citizens, and it is regrettable that a more meaningful and constructive measure could not have been devised to eliminate the blight of poverty."

"In order to grasp its complete significance, one must revert to the ancient Chinese custom of first reading its fine print from the back," Congressman Wharton states in referring to the "Poverty Bill" H.R. 11377.

"It carries a price tag of $962 million, which means over $5 per capita or about $20 in additional taxes from each United States family. Once instituted, additional funds of course, will be required."

"Realistically, on the President's own figures of 35 million needy persons, each would receive $28—less the cost of administering the program, which has by no means been overlooked," Congressman Wharton stated.

"Near the end of this voluminous document, a new Bureau is to be set up in Washington known as 'The Office of Economic Opportunity,' with a Director and four Deputy Directors, all I presume in the $30 thousand per annum salary range. There is no limit set on the number of subordinates and garden variety workers, who will undoubtedly number in the thousands. 'Consultants' may be employed at the rate of $100 per day and this alone should lend encouragement to uncommitted Democratic politicians."

"Considerable space is attributed to the Work Training and Study Programs, although these items are already authorized under existing laws. Community Action, under still another heading, is a sweeping designation that sounds suspiciously like the so-called achievements of the faltering Area Redevelopment Administration, which Congress has already found wanting and impractical of operation."

"There is also mention of Rural Assistance in the form of grants or loans of $1500 up to $2500 to indigent farmers, but these cases could only be anticipated for publicity purposes as this is also a loose duplication of the existing Farmers Home Administration Loan Program. The inflated cost of farm equipment and operation today suggests that such payments at best would afford little more than a downpayment for further indebtedness."

"A Job Corps provision anticipates 40,000 enrollees at a first year's figure of $4,700 each for work camp or training center experience for youths in the 16-21 age bracket. This is simply a return to the C.C.C. Camps of the depressed 30's."

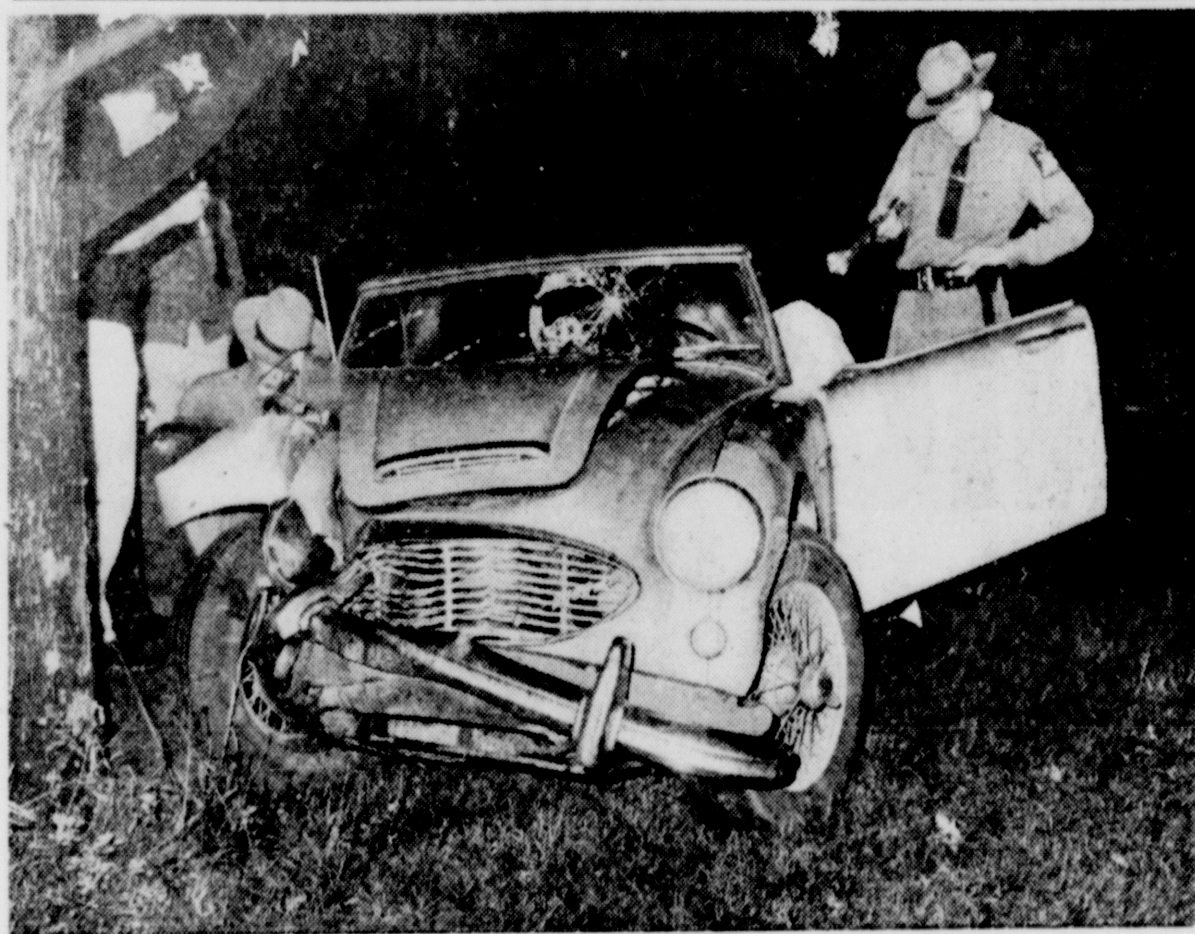

"Conceived in last-minute political haste, this Bill completely

Calling President Johnson's "Poverty Bill," one "conceived in last-minute political haste," Congressman J. Ernest Wharton (R), 28th District, in a statement to the Freeman explains why he was unable to support the bill.

Congressman Wharton states that the bill "completely ignores the aged and the very young, who constitute the largest group of needy citizens, and it is regrettable that a more meaningful and constructive measure could not have been devised to eliminate the blight of poverty."

"In order to grasp its complete significance, one must revert to the ancient Chinese custom of first reading its fine print from the back," Congressman Wharton states in referring to the "Poverty Bill" H.R. 11377.

"It carries a price tag of $962 million, which means over $5 per capita or about $20 in additional taxes from each United States family. Once instituted, additional funds of course, will be required."

"Realistically, on the President's own figures of 35 million needy persons, each would receive $28—less the cost of administering the program, which has by no means been overlooked," Congressman Wharton stated.

"Near the end of this voluminous document, a new Bureau is to be set up in Washington known as 'The Office of Economic Opportunity,' with a Director and four Deputy Directors, all I presume in the $30 Thousand per annum salary range. There is no limit set on the number of subordinates and garden variety workers, who will undoubtedly number in the thousands. 'Consultants' may be employed at the rate of $100 per day and this alone should lend encouragement to uncommitted Democratic politicians."

"Considerable space is attributed to the Work Training and Study Programs, although these items are already authorized under existing laws. Community Action, under still another heading, is a sweeping designation

that sounds suspiciously like the so-called achievements of the faltering Area Redevelopment Administration, which Congress has already found wanting and impractical of operation."

"There is also mention of Rural Assistance in the form of grants or loans of $1500 up to $2500 to indigent farmers, but these cases could only be anticipated for publicity purposes as this is also a loose duplication of the existing Farmers Home Administration Loan Program. The inflated cost of farm equipment and operation today suggests that such payments at best would afford little more than a downpayment for further indebtedness."

"A Job Corps provision anticipates 40,000 enrollees at a first year's figure of $4,700 each for work camp or training center experience for youths in the 16-21 age bracket. This is simply a return to the C.C.C. Camps of the depressed 30's."

"Conceived in last-minute political haste, this Bill completely

Busy Day Before Opening Tonight

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The big LBJ roundup — the 1964 Democratic convention — opens tonight with President Johnson trying to herd it away from bruising North-South clashes.

The President, his own nomination to be a noisy formality Wednesday night, concentrated his efforts on keeping his ranks intact for November and thus was calling practically all the signals from Washington.

One signal he hasn't called, his choice of a running mate, but half a dozen hands were ready to jump at the ring. Still the most often mentioned number was that of the party's Senate whip, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

Day Bright, Warm

The day broke bright and warm. Thousands of delegates, alternates and their families mingled with sun-baked tourists along the storied boardwalk, faced on all sides with stalls of carnival souvenirs of Johnson and the late President John F. Kennedy.

As the sun rose, hundreds of red, white and blue bedecked volunteers for LBJ rallied on the ocean front to begin shaping up for their convention duties.

Behind the honky tonk glitter the committees worked at shaping the convention and its platform into the broad harmony and unity design Johnson would like.

No Word on Peace

The word had gone down the line to avoid any explosive fight over a civil rights plank and to settle the controversy over the seating of contested Alabama and Mississippi delegations in a manner calculated to give the least offense to Southerners and the Negro-dominated delegation demanding seats from Mississippi.

Late Sunday night, the platform writers reached preliminary agreement or a call for enforcement of the new Civil Rights Act and on condemnation of political extremist tactics.

The credentials committee, headed by former Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania, ruled Alabama delegates would have to sign an oath of loyalty to the national party ticket if they wished to participate in the convention.

Quickly this group, selected under the auspices of segregationist Gov. George C. Wallace, rejected the demand. National Committeeman Eugene (Bull) Connor of Birmingham already had the delegation's convention credentials in hand and declined to surrender them.

Difficult Decision

A much more difficult decision faced the committee today. It promised to come to grips with the question of seating an all-white 23-vote unpledged delegation from Mississippi or the largely Negro Mississippi Freedom Democratic party group.

In another section of the civil rights front, the platform committee's executive committee

quickly this group, selected under the auspices of segregationist Gov. George C. Wallace, rejected the demand. National Committeeman Eugene (Bull) Connor of Birmingham already had the delegation's convention credentials in hand and declined to surrender them.

Backed Wagner

De Sapio rose to the political heights in New York when, as leader of Tammany, he spearheaded the election of Robert F. Wagner as mayor of New York City in 1953 and of W. Averell Harriman as governor in 1954.

The party split in 1958 when

De Sapio's likely successor was Edwin Weiss, a New York corporation lawyer described as President Johnson's closest friend in the Empire State.

De Sapio, smiling and affable, appeared nothing like a prospect for a "last hurrah" as he arrived Sunday night to be on hand for the caucus. But he said he would not fight to hold his post.

Easter Seal Group Slates National Art Competition

A unique national art competition announced today by the National Society for Crippled Children and adults who are receiving help from the Easter Seal Society.

The resulting exhibit of prize-winning art will be a feature of the 1965 Easter Seal campaign, mounted as traveling exhibits for nationwide display.

Both children and adults are eligible, with judging categories divided into three age groups and identical prizes for each. The groups are: up to age 10;

11 to 17 years inclusive; 18 years and over. All art mediums will be acceptable, including oil, water color, pastel, charcoal, etching and wood or linoleum block. Subjects should relate to the Easter season and may be either religious or festive, such as rabbits, Easter eggs or other situations related to the season.

Deadline for entries is October 1 and judging will be completed by November 15. First, second and third winners in each age classification will receive Defense Bonds and three additional entries will be given honorable mention awards.

Brunette Coed Takes Course With 300 Men

CHICAGO (AP) — Coeds who are wont to calculate the male-to-female ratio might envy Virginia Rakocinski's situation 399 to 1 and she's the one.

But the subjects she studies are a far cry from the usual coed fare — jujitsu, narcotics, criminal law and pistol shooting.

Miss Rakocinski, 24, of suburban Evanston, is enrolled in the Chicago police training division's 13-week course with 300 men.

The attractive brunette is the first woman to go through the course with men.

Female trainees usually attend the school in a separate class. This time Miss Rakocinski was the only girl candidate and it was judged impractical to set up a special class for her.

Despite the ratio, she hasn't been dating.

"I'm here to study," she said, "besides, don't forget many of the men are married."

Miss Rakocinski, a shapely 5-foot-5, 120-pounder, said she decided to become a policewoman "because I wanted to do something very different and challenging."

She already has met one challenge: she topped 42 applicants to win a policewoman's job on the Skokie police department. Skokie is a suburb served by the Chicago police training school.

A graduate of Mundelein College in Chicago, with a degree in chemistry, Miss Rakocinski quit a job in the radioactive research department of a Skokie pharmaceutical firm.

$7.2 Million Seized In Phony Currency

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service reports it seized a record $7.2 million in counterfeit currency during the year ended June 30.

Of the known bogus currency, agents confiscated $11 out of every $12 before it was passed.

Chief James J. Rowley of the Secret Service reported that agents uncovered 44 counterfeit plants and arrested 73 persons during the year.

Meat Imports Fixed Below 1963 Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — Meat imports will be kept 15 per cent below last year's record level under a bill signed by President Johnson Saturday.

The bill sets a basic import limit of 725,400,000 pounds per year of fresh, chilled or frozen beef, goats and sheep, except lambs.

Beauties Disqualified

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — The week-long Miss United States beauty pageant opens tonight minus five lovelies.

Pageant officials disqualified them because they do not live in the states they represented — Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Robert Schaub, the pageant attorney, said all five lived in Massachusetts. Winner of the Miss United States title will be selected Friday.

Pull $50,000 Burglary

WASHINGTON (AP) — An extensive burglar alarm system and a steel door in the back failed to prevent burglars stealing nearly $50,000 in furs from a Connecticut Avenue store, the French Poodle.

The burglars broke into an office above the store, owned by Mrs. Alvin Epstein. They cut a hole through the ceiling of the shop, lowered themselves with a rope or rope ladder, and made away early Sunday with furs valued by the owner at nearly $50,000.

Moscow Beer Shortage

MOSCOW (AP) — It's sad but true. There's a beer shortage in Moscow.

"People are wandering around looking for beer," said a reporter for the newspaper Moskovskaya Pravda.

What's the trouble? Moscow's four breweries aren't brewing enough and what is brewed isn't all taken, says the paper.

Beverages are sold at 9,500 places in Moscow but only 32 sell beer in addition to 105 beer wagons.

What Moscow really needs, the paper adds, is 300 or 400 stores that stock beer.

Going to Provinces

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Eugene Cardinal Disserant, 80-year-old dean of the Sacred College of Cardinals, begins a 10-day journey today to Mexico's provinces.

The expression, "stuffed shirt," for someone who imagines that he is more important than he actually is, was started in 1899 by American actress Fay Templeton. The epithet was thrown at another stage personality, John Gates, who was a great pretender at having wealth. It was rumored that Gates padded his shirts to aid his appearance.

Three Hudson Homes Damaged by Fire

Three two-family homes were heavily damaged by fire at 25-27-29 Columbia Street Hudson, on Saturday, despite efforts of firemen from that city and seven nearby fire companies. Damage was estimated at upwards of $30,000.

Fire officials said 30 persons were evacuated safely from the burning homes. Water was taken from five city hydrants until a pumper relay was set up to pump water from the Hudson River.

A fire official said investigation indicated that someone was smoking in bed, causing the fire.

September 9 Is Opening Day For Onteora Central Schools

All schools in the Onteora Central District will open Wednesday, Sept. 9, with a full day session in grades 1 through 12. Kindergarten children will attend school on half-day sessions, Superintendent of Schools George R. Sullivan announced.

Three new elementary buildings will be available for use on opening day thus eliminating both the half-day sessions and temporary quarters for students in grades 1 through 6.

A new school is ready at Phoenicia and 11-room additions are being completed at Woodstock and West Hurley.

Enrollment for the coming year is expected to reach 2,680. Last September's enrollment was 2,540.

Elementary grade classes will be held in the Bennett building at Boiceville and at elementary schools in Woodstock, West Hurley and Phoenicia. Grades 7 through 12 will begin classes on full day schedules with about 1,000 pupils in the high school building at Boiceville which has a capacity of 900 students. An additional 75 students in grade seven will attend the Woodstock school.

A steady increase of about 140 students each year will soon force high school grades on half-day sessions unless additional space is provided, Superintendent Sullivan said.

Schedules Listed
Time schedules have been announced as follows: high school buildings, 8:30 a. m. to 3:23 p. m.; elementary buildings (1-6 and 7th in Woodstock), 8:45 a. m. to 3:15 p. m.; kindergarten, a. m., 8:45 to 11:15 a. m.; p. m., 12:45 to 3:15 p. m.

Bus passenger lists will be posted in all post offices in the school district and in a number of stores by Thursday, Sept. 3. Information relating to passenger loading, route description, and time schedules will be included on these posted lists.

A full lunch program will operate at the high school and all elementary buildings on Sept. 9. The cost of the regular lunch will be 25 cents and menus are announced daily over radio stations WGHQ and WKNY.

Turnau's Barber Is Rousing Hit

Italian opera buffa in English — this is what Turnau Opera Players do best. And this is what they did Friday evening in presenting the first of four performances in Woodstock of Rossini's supreme achievement in this genre, The Barber of Seville.

The Barber is pure fun from beginning to end. It was fun for the audience, the musicians, and particularly for the singers, who cavorted gaily through three acts of outlandish and delightful stage business. I don't know when I enjoyed the Barber so much.

The principal credit for all this fun should go to Alan Baker, who not only played Figaro, but served as dramatic director for this production. Mr. Baker is a fine singing actor — it was a pleasure to see him again in a good part, that of the acquisitive matchmaking barber. As director, he has technical know-how as well as ingenuity in contriving new business for an old script. We particularly liked the conga line preceding Basilio's exit in the second act and the silent movie bit in Act 3 when the lovers are attempting their escape.

Miss Sullam Pleases
Next we should mention Lu-

April 15, Easter recess (schools close 3:30 p. m., April 14); April 26, school reopens.

cille Sullam, who played the coy Rosina. Like Mr. Baker, Miss Sullam has long been a favorite with Turnau Opera goers, including this one, and her return to stardom was most welcome. She has sung, and sung well, every kind of soprano role — her Rosina now completes the list. It is a challenging role, for it combines lyric quality and low tessitura. Miss Sullam accepted the challenge and adapted her normally high, brilliant voice to these requirements. And she can handle the trills and all the other bel canto stuff.

Rosina's suitor, Count Almaviva, was played by Eric Davis, who proved himself a fine comedian as well as a tenor with a resplendent upper register. In the opening scenes, however, his intonation and breath control were imperfect, his secco delivery weak and his acting stiff. But from the moment he entered in Act 2 disguised as a drunken soldier, he was dramatically and musically superb.

The bass J. B. Davis was Dr. Bartolo. Rosina's guardian and unsuccessful suitor, an open buffa stereotype. Mr. Davis has vocal technique and acting ability, but his greatest asset is his voice itself — it is magnificent.

Tamburello Steals Show
Without detracting from the others, we must admit that the show stealer was Anthony Tamburello, who played the scheming music master Don Basilio. Mr. Tamburello is a good all-around performer and a real master of comic pantomime, i.e., his piano playing act. As a singer, his lows are better than his highs, but he can put over a number as he demonstrated in the wonderful "Calumnia."

The servant Berta was played by Nancy Wyner, who triumphed in her comic soliloquy. Her facial expressions contributed to the general merriment.

The musical direction and piano playing of Yehudi Wyner and Warren Wilson were splendid as usual, but Rossini does not "go" on the piano as well as Verdi or Mozart. I think more pedal would help.

Anyway, "bravo" everybody... VICTOR LANDAU.

Mari Galleries Feature Lewen

A one-man show of Si Lewen's recent works will complete the summer of outstanding exhibitions at the Mari Galleries in Woodstock. Opening Friday, Aug. 28, and continuing through Sept. 11, this exhibit will present dramatic paintings skillfully executed by a versatile artist. Lewen also has won recognition for his colleges and graphic art work.

Born in Berlin, Lewen began his formal art training under Klaus Richter of the Berlin Academy. In 1955 he left Berlin for two years' study in France, and came to New York to attend the National Academy. He became an American citizen in 1961, joined the Army and served on the European front in World War II. After the war, he resumed and completed his studies at the Art Students League, principally under Sidney Lauffman and Julian Levi.

Lewen has had many one-man shows and has been represented in numerous national exhibitions throughout the country; he has also shown in the Musée d'Art Juif in Paris. He created a book, published in 1957, "The Parade. A Story in 55 Drawings," which was critically appraised as a "document of our time" and through the art of Si Lewen a unique artistic document as well.

In addition to the Lewen Exhibition, the Mari Galleries presents its permanent Group Show; Beny Andrews, Rosemary Beck, Betty Esemann, Molla, Herman Oxhandler, and Paul Seckel are among the distinguished artists represented.

The Mari Galleries, 120 Tinker Street, are open daily from 10 a. m.

Three Hudson Homes Damaged by Fire

Three two-family homes were heavily damaged by fire at 25-27-29 Columbia Street Hudson, on Saturday, despite efforts of firemen from that city and seven nearby fire companies. Damage was estimated at upwards of $30,000.

Fire officials said 30 persons were evacuated safely from the burning homes. Water was taken from five city hydrants until a pumper relay was set up to pump water from the Hudson River.

A fire official said investigation indicated that someone was smoking in bed, causing the fire.

September 9 Is Opening Day For Onteora Central Schools

All schools in the Onteora Central District will open Wednesday, Sept. 9, with a full day session in grades 1 through 12. Kindergarten children will attend school on half-day sessions, Superintendent of Schools George R. Sullivan announced.

Three new elementary buildings will be available for use on opening day thus eliminating both the half-day sessions and temporary quarters for students in grades 1 through 6.

A new school is ready at Phenicia and 11-room additions are being completed at Woodstock and West Hurley.

Enrollment for the coming year is expected to reach 2,680. Last September's enrollment was 2,540.

Elementary grade classes will be held in the Bennett building at Boiceville and at elementary schools in Woodstock, West Hurley and Phenicia. Grades 7 through 12 will begin classes on full day schedules with about 1,000 pupils in the high school building at Boiceville which has a capacity of 900 students. An additional 75 students in grade seven will attend the Woodstock school.

A steady increase of about 140 students each year will soon force high school grades on half-day sessions unless additional space is provided, Superintendent Sullivan said.

Schedules Listed

Time schedules have been announced as follows: high school buildings, 8:30 a. m. to 3:23 p. m.; elementary buildings (1-6 and 7th in Woodstock), 8:45 a. m. to 3:15 p. m.; kindergarten, a. m., 8:45 to 11:15 a. m.; p. m., 12:45 to 3:15 p. m.

Bus passenger lists will be posted in all post offices in the school district and in a number of stores by Thursday, Sept. 3. Information relating to passenger loading, route description, and time schedules will be included on these posted lists.

A full lunch program will operate at the high school and all elementary buildings on Sept. 9. The cost of the regular luncheon will be 25 cents and menus are announced daily over radio stations WGHQ and WKNY.

PARENTAL GUIDANCE

Juvenile delinquency is one of those complex subjects about which nearly everybody has an opinion, if not a solution.

It is a constantly recurring topic in magazines and newspaper articles by laymen as well as such experts as judges, sociologists and psychologists.

It is a matter of concern at all levels of government, including the federal, and now even threatens to be an issue in the forthcoming presidential election campaign.

It is not often, though, that we hear from the people who are most immediately concerned with young people when they get into trouble—the police.

A survey was recently made by the International Association of Chiefs of Police.
Thirty-two police chiefs and superior officers, plus 12 other persons engaged in police training and a judge, a state youth correction officer and a youth commission director were asked what in their experience were the major problems in police work with respect to juvenile delinquency.
The results were printed in "The Police Chief," the association's official publication.

By far the most frequently cited problem was—parents.

According to the police, the responsibility for a child's misconduct very often lies not with the child, but with his parents because they fail to provide proper guidance and adequate discipline.

Parents of children in trouble are often more involved in their own interests and pleasures than in maintaining a healthy family environment at home. Sometimes they are not only disrespectful of the law themselves but in direct conflict with it.

In some cases, laboring under a heritage of poverty and ignorance, parents are simply not equipped to raise children decently.

Far too frequently, however, the "better" kind of parents cause the police their worst headaches. Usually overprotective—which is not to be confused with overstrict—they refuse to believe their children can do any wrong.

Indeed, the parents even accuse the police of "framing" their darlings—distorting the facts to make things look worse than they are. They refuse to cooperate with efforts to get their children to revise their attitudes of contempt toward persons and property.

Such parents, it has been found, have the attitude that the law is something to beat and that the police exist only to mete out punishment. This philosophy is passed on to their children, either deliberately or unconsciously.

Parental delinquency or parental failure is only one aspect of the whole problem, of course. There are shortcomings on the part of the community, the schools, the churches, the courts and the police themselves.

But if it cannot be said that juvenile delinquency begins at home, it is only because the home that it visits, whether it is a hovel or a mansion, is no real home.

EXCISE TAX SHIFT

The excise tax weather vane at the Treasury Department made a noteworthy swing the other day. Political winds may have contributed much to the shift, but it is of considerable interest all the same.

Secretary Dillon told Democratic party platform writers that many excise taxes are "an unnecessary nuisance to taxpayers and government alike." Anyone who thinks this sounds a good deal like what Republicans were saying some months ago is right. The Republicans staged a drive to eliminate some excises altogether, but at that time the administration opposed such a move.

The administration's stated reason for opposition, at the time of the effort in Congress, was that it was too early to cut out the excises; more study was suggested. The administration, through Dillon, is still suggesting more study. But apparently the timetable has been moved up and the administration is now talking of excise tax

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

A MAN AT GOLDWATER'S ELBOW

Barry Goldwater has a lot of know-how and know-what going for him in his immediate entourage. The question is how well will he use it?

There is Ed Nellor, his press secretary, for example. Almost everyone has forgotten it by now, but it was Ed Nellor who, as a Washington correspondent for the old New York Sun in 1948, was responsible for breaking the Alger Hiss case.

It happened this way. Ed Nellor, in scouting around Washington, had learned that a man named Whittaker Chambers had been taken by Isaac Don Levine, a veteran anti-Stalinist, to see Adolf Berle in the State Department at the time of the Nazi-Soviet pact. Chambers had warned Berle that Communists had infiltrated the State Department. He named some names, trying to soften his blows a bit by referring to "Marxist study groups." When Berle passed the information up to President Roosevelt, he was, in effect, told to go fly a kite. Accordingly, the story did not break, and nothing was done about Chambers' warnings.

Nine years went by, and Stalin had been behaving in a menacing way for a long time, when Ed Nellor wrote in the New York Sun that the House Un-American Activities Committee might really learn something about Communist subversion if it would only issue a subpoena to a prominent news magazine.

I happened to be in Whittaker Chambers' office at Time Magazine when the Sun, with Ed Nellor's story, was placed on Chambers' desk.
Chambers turned white when he read it. "This means me," he said.

Making light of it, I remarked that people would only think well of the Chambers' patriotism if he went to Washington and told what he knew of the Communist conspiracy. (I did not, at the time, know anything about Chambers' connection with Alger Hiss.) Chambers refused to be jockeyed out of his depression over the Nellor story. "I always feared I'd have to cross this bridge," he said, "but I hoped not to." Then, looking down the hall toward the office of a ranking Time editor, he added glumly: "Besides, people around here don't like informers."

In due course, the subpoena to Chambers was issued. The Hiss case broke upon a startled nation, and, in time, Chambers wrote "Witness," his masterly Dostoevskian study of the operations of Communism in America which paid due attention to the dilemmas of a delicate conscience torn between the necessity of warning the nation and a candid distrust of exposing old friends.

The point about bringing up this episode from Ed Nellor's journalistic past is that Barry Goldwater has at his elbow a man who knows a great deal about the machinations of the Communist enemy. Maybe Nellor could make something of a piece by Harold P. Green, a lawyer and professor of law at George Washington University who was with the Atomic Energy Commission from 1959 to 1964. Writing in the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists for May, 1964, Mr. Green says,
"I am personally aware of several cases in which the AEC has granted clearance to persons unable to obtain clearance in other agencies or persons who were discharged on security grounds by other agencies; or cases in which grave security problems were found by other agencies in the backgrounds of persons previously cleared by the AEC with full knowledge of the derogatory information which so troubled the other agencies."

Mr. Green apparently thinks rather well of the AEC for not having a "savage security program."
He says "the concept of security has come a long way since the nightmarish aberrations of the early Eisenhower years." A Barry Goldwater who has recently looked with favor upon the foreign policy record of the Eisenhower-Dulles Administration, which protected Lebanon and refused to sacrifice Quemoy and Matsu, might not interpret the Eisenhower "concept of security" as a "nightmarish aberration." And maybe Barry Goldwater's Ed Nellor should suggest another subpoena to

THE WELL CHILD

There's Lots to Be Gained
By Calling a Pediatrician
By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Who needs more special attention than a baby? Happily, even our smaller communities now have at least one pediatrician. So chances are that in a few hours after the birth of your child, your doctor will want a pediatrician to examine the infant.

If it is a first baby there is much to be gained by meeting with this specialist before the big day, eliminating the feeling that a total stranger is giving your most precious possession a working over. It will be helpful if this doctor knows of any allergies you or your husband may have.

It is better if he gets this information when you are relaxed rather than exhausted or drowsy from sedatives.

Your pediatrician will also want to know about any hereditary diseases that may complicate the life of your baby. He can often give reassurance about matters that have been worrying you, and he may advise you about the purchase and care of the proper type of equipment your baby will need.

It is both legitimate and wise to discuss in advance his fees, how often the baby should most doctors believe that breast feeding is best for your infant, your pediatrician is likely to be more forceful about this than your obstetrician and he may know ways to help you succeed in this venture.

If it is not a first baby, let your present pediatrician know you are expecting. He can make suggestions about running your home and give you valuable advice on preparing the older children for the new addition.

Q—When my baby was six months he had a smallpox vaccination. There was some question about a positive take. Should he have another smallpox vaccination before he starts to school?

A—For full protection against smallpox everyone should be vaccinated every three to five years.
When there is any doubt about an initial take,
this is doubly important.

relief when it is "warranted by our economic and budgetary position."

Whether or not this shift in the Treasury position is dictated by election year politics, the fact is that a thoroughgoing revision of the excise tax structure is long overdue. Dillon now is saying that "next year is the time." Thus Democrats and Republicans seem to be drawing closer together on this point.

That is all to the good. Dillon properly describes the excise taxes, levied at various times since as far back as World War II, as a "hodgepodge." The hodgepodge needs to be put in order, and some of the taxes should be repealed. It is encouraging to find both major parties in substantial agreement on this.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 20
(NEA) — "In this convention they are passing the torch back."

This wry comment by an anonymous party figure characterizes the business here of handing the Democratic presidential nomination to Lyndon B.
Johnson—a man only nine years older than the late John F. Kennedy, but belonging clearly to an earlier political generation.

When Kennedy was assassinated, the party not only lost a considerable part of the youth it had gained, but much of the emotional fervor that infected its cause in the Kennedy years.

THE ABSENCE OF THAT FERVOR TODAY is remarked by a number of leading Democrats, who see it as the principal problem confronting President Johnson in his 1964 bid for election in his own right.

Johnson does not seize the imagination of many of the younger Democrats, leaders and rank and file alike, who felt that in John Kennedy's approach to the difficulties of the age there was not just zest and style but great new substance.

To these people, Lyndon Johnson is viewed, not disrespectfully, as "the last of the log cabin boys," a man bearing the marks of a now disappearing small-town America.

Key party strategists argue that, in important part, these factors account at once for the tremendous breadth of Johnson's present national support, and for the lack of steam behind it.

THE EVIDENT THINNESS of the President's backing, the strategists say, makes him peculiarily vulnerable to such highly emotional stirrings as the white back-lash against the Negro.

At least one high-placed Democrat insists nonetheless that Johnson has the real makings of an emotionally charged issue which could more than offset the back-lash.

"Civil rights is going to hurt us, but the bomb will win it for us," he says.

This is his way of saying that Johnson and his managers intend to batter tirelessly on the theme that Sen. Barry Goldwater, his GOP rival, is a man who is too
"trigger-happy" to be trusted with this country's immense nuclear force.

MOST OF THE PRESI-DENT'S seasoned political heads are looking at the coming campaign, however, as an exercise in getting his "broad support" registered and then out to the polls in November.

Convinced the emotional ingredient in this support was low, Democratic leaders many months ago mounted the most ambitious registration effort in the party's history.

For all this, the results have been spotty and inconclusive in some areas—and much hard work remains.

Some of it is being done at this convention, as registration specialists meet to single out specific target zones where the Democratic vote potential is deemed large.

OPINION POLLS GENERAL-LY GIVE JOHNSON 60 to 64

The Party Platforms: What They Don't Mean

ATLANTIC CITY —To paraphrase a widely publicized paradox uttered just a few weeks ago at the Republican National Convention, the political behavior of this convulse of the Democrats might well be epitomized as follows:

"Extremism in defense of hypoocrisy is no vice. Moderation in pursuit of ambition is no virtue."
For it's more like a carnival here than a national assembly designed to nominate a candidate for election to the Presidency of the most powerful nation in the world. The atmosphere rather is that of a carefree reunion of politicians from all parts of the country. They know ahead of time what they are to do and just how to do it.
They don't even have to worry about whom to select as Vice-President, as this will be told them by the boss—Lyndon Johnson—in advance of the balloting.
What he dictates will, of course, be ratified is a routine procedure
—a vote by acclamation after a single roll call.

But the story here isn't who will be nominated for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket.
It's the story that was apparent also at the Republican National Convention in San Francisco. It concerns the absolute indifference manifested toward the pious principle proclaimed by the Supreme Court of the United States in a recent decision calling for "one person, one vote."
For there is no such thing as a vote by the citizen in most of the states of the Union in the process of selecting Presidential nominees. The convention system compels the country to choose in the November election between two candidates selected by groups of party bosses and politicians who rule the roost without benefit of a referendum or any other representative method of picking delegates to reflect voter desires or opinion.

The convention here this week is no exception to the rule. It is a big publicity stunt, reinforced now by nationwide television and by movies and singers on one day's program and then on another day solemn memorial services and eulogies.

There is nothing, moreover, in a party convention that could,
by the remotest stretch of the imagination, be compared to the operations of a national legislative body composed of representative individuals versed in national and international affairs.

Some members of Congress do participate in the writing of the party platforms, but the delegates from all over the country take what is handed to them by the party bosses and automatically approve it. If sometimes there is a dissent and a minority report is filed, this usually is claimed to be "on principle," but as a rule it is actually a transparent mechanism of politics designed by a rival faction to try to embarrass a would-be candidate, as happened at the San Francisco convention.

There are, of course, plenty of cynics here among the newsmen.
They know from past observation that what is professed in a party platform or in campaign speeches is both ambiguous and partially misleading. When two major party conventions deal so arbitrarily with either national or international questions, it can be truly dangerous to the welfare of the people. Let one example be cited.

Just 48 years ago the slogan of the Democrats in the 1916 presidential campaign was "peace and prosperity." It was a phrase belloyed forth constantly at the Democratic National Convention, which was held at St. Louis, Mo. The keynote speaker was the Democratic Governor of New York, Martin H. Glynn. He described successive crises in America's international relations of those days, and praised President Wilson's part in the development of foreign policy. Recalling each international dispute, he would cry out: "And what did he do?"
He settled the matter by negotiation. There was a momentary pause, and the whole audience sang out:
"And he kept us out of war!"

This dramatic stunt, repeated several times, was greeted with deafening applause and cheers.
But exactly one month after the inauguration of Mr. Wilson for a second term, the same President was asking Congress to recognize a state of war, and the United States thus entered World War I.

Was the enemy deceived into thinking the American politicians would have enough influence to prevent resistance to the Kaiser's aggression, or that American military participation would come too late to save Europe?

In 1940, the Democratic Presidential nominee, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, campaigned successfully for a third term and promised the people they would be kept out of war.
It is to be hoped that Khrushchev will not misread the campaign speeches of 1964 as did the autocratic governments which, respectively, forced American entry into World War I and World War II.

MADRID, Spain — There is serenity here, as though Hispania had disengaged itself from Europe and Africa, and was dozing in a hammock by itself.
Along the edges of the Manzana-res, the grass is bottle-green against the white sun and the poplars spin coins in the breeze.
The Spanish government is aware of Cyprus and Vietnam, but the people are aware of bread.

The avenidas are broad and laced with trees. The only sound is the popping of motorcycles.
The senior ride side-saddle and hold onto their husbands. Farmers walk their donkey carts through the traffic and policemen in white helmets and white tunics bow the traffic to start and to stop.

The farmhouses on the plain have orange tile roofs and white washed walls, and window boxes of geraniums. The peasant men wear blue denim slacks and berets; the women are full-figured and stare at the street from behind old shutters. The enemy here is not time; it is the sun. All the shops close at 1:30 and all Spaniards, including school-children, undress and go to bed and remain there until 4:30.

Then the shops open. So do the schools. Business goes on until 8 p. m. and then everyone washes and dresses for dinner.
Most restaurants in the capital do not open until 9 p. m. and dinner goes on until midnight.
The children sleep from that time until 8 a. m., and from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m.

Prices are much cheaper here than elsewhere. A good steak dinner at Casa Pato in Madrid antigua comes to $7 for four persons. This includes tip, and the steak — well, Kathleen, our 9-year-old blonde, calls it "heavenly" although she has never been able to finish one. On the other hand, she was valiant in finishing a huge plate of homemade ice cream.

The girls, Karen, 11, and Kathleen, are trying to understand what it means to be in Europe. They keep telling each other that they flew across the Atlantic Ocean in one night, although neither one saw water, and they only half believe their own propaganda. Karen's main interest on TWA Flight 902 was to see the motion picture which is shown after dinner. There is a screen which comes down at the head of the aisle, and each passenger has an earphone for sound.

The picture starred Jack Lemmon and, by the time dinner was over, both girls curled up on their seats and subsided under blankets. They saw none of it.
They awakened as the Boeing 707 was settling into Madrid, and they had no idea where they were, or even why.

Kathleen was determined to be as Spanish as possible, so, whenever a Spaniard made a fuss over her, no matter what he said, she smiled her sweetest and said "Gracias." This covered all situations, even when she was being asked her name. Karen said she knew 25 words in Spanish — taught to her by the nuns at St. Matthews in Hallanddale, but she couldn't remember them. Anyway, she complained that the Spanish people said their words too fast for her to recall hers.

Yesterday, on the feast of Santo Domingo, they went to the Plaza de Toros to see the bull-fights. I was worried because three novilleros were fighting six bulls, and there is always a chance that a little girl will weep, or faint, when the bull is killed. The corrida lasted from 6:30 p. m. to 8:30, and the crowd roared its approval when the faenas were good, and whistled when the picadors were too zealous.

The little girls turned out to be blood-thirsty fanged. A young matador named Tomas Parra had his jewel-encrusted pants ripped off by the horns of a bull and our cherubs leaped to their feet screaming. "This," Karen said, "is the most exciting sport of all." They applauded dead bulls for bravery, mocked a torreador for losing his muleta and hopping the fence, and shrieked with mock horror when a bull knocked a picador off his horse and walked across his body.

Until now, all that occupied their minds were frilly clothes, and dolls. We had a Madrilenio driver, and he has only seen two or three thousand bull fights, so Karen explained the essence of the corrida to him. "It isn't brutal, you know," she said. He seemed surprised. "The bull would be killed anyway, for his meat. No," she said, "the idea is to prove man's domination — you know this word domination?
—over the fierce animals. The man is either brave and confident, or he is a coward."

The driver, a man named Polyarpo, relaxed. "Ah," he said,
"truth falls from the lips of the young." Kathleen looked at her mother: "Woddy say?" she said.
This was the most we got out of Kathleen, because the five hours' difference in time between New York and Madrid had her confused.

She was tired all day and wide-awake all night. "The Spanish," she said one, "are our friends." I asked how she knew. "They're so polite to us," she said. "The maid even turns my bed down before I'm ready."

What else? "Well, that man Senor Pedrosa — you know, the minister? — he kissed my hand and nobody ever did that before."

Ah yes. That's important when you're nine, and still single.

Juvenile delinquency is one of those complex subjects about which nearly everybody has an opinion, if not a solution.

It is a constantly recurring topic in magazines and newspaper articles by laymen as well as such experts as judges, sociologists and psychologists.

It is a matter of concern at all levels of government, including the federal, and now even threatens to be an issue in the forthcoming presidential election campaign.

It is not often, though, that we hear from the people who are most immediately concerned with young people when they get into trouble—the police.

A survey was recently made by the International Association of Chiefs of Police. Thirty-two police chiefs and superior officers, plus 12 other persons engaged in police training and a judge, a state youth correction officer and a youth commission director were asked what in their experience were the major problems in police work with respect to juvenile delinquency. The results were printed in "The Police Chief," the association's official publication.

By far the most frequently cited problem was—parents.

According to the police, the responsibility for a child's misconduct very often lies not with the child, but with his parents because they fail to provide proper guidance and adequate discipline.

Parents of children in trouble are often more involved in their own interests and pleasures than in maintaining a healthy family environment at home. Sometimes they are not only disrespectful of the law themselves but in direct conflict with it.

In some cases, laboring under a heritage of poverty and ignorance, parents are simply not equipped to raise children decently.

Far too frequently, however, the "better" kind of parents cause the police their worst headaches. Usually overprotective—which is not to be confused with overstrict—they refuse to believe their children can do any wrong.

Indeed, the parents even accuse the police of "framing" their darlings—distorting the facts to make things look worse than they are. They refuse to cooperate with efforts to get their children to revise their attitudes of contempt toward persons and property.

Such parents, it has been found, have the attitude that the law is something to beat and that the police exist only to mete out punishment. This philosophy is passed on to their children, either deliberately or unconsciously.

Parental delinquency or parental failure is only one aspect of the whole problem, of course. There are shortcomings on the part of the community, the schools, the churches, the courts and the police themselves.

But if it cannot be said that juvenile delinquency begins at home, it is only because the home that it visits, whether it is a hotel or a mansion, is no real home.

EXCISE TAX SHIFT

The excise tax weather vane at the Treasury Department made a noteworthy swing the other day. Political winds may have contributed much to the shift, but it is of considerable interest all the same.

Secretary Dillon told Democratic party platform writers that many excise taxes are "an unnecessary nuisance to taxpayers and government alike." Anyone who thinks this sounds a good deal like what Republicans were saying some months ago is right. The Republicans staged a drive to eliminate some excises altogether, but at that time the administration opposed such a move.

The administration's stated reason for opposition, at the time of the effort in Congress, was that it was too early to cut out the excises; more study was suggested. The administration, through Dillon, is still suggesting more study. But apparently the timetable has been moved up and the administration is now talking of excise tax

A MAN AT GOLDWATER'S ELBOW

Barry Goldwater has a lot of know-how and know-what going for him in his immediate entourage. The question is how well will he use it?

There is Ed Nellor, his press secretary, for example. Almost everyone has forgotten it by now, but it was Ed Nellor who, as a Washington correspondent for the old New York Sun in 1948, was responsible for breaking the Alger Hiss case. It happened this way. Ed Nellor, in scouting around Washington, had learned that a man named Whittaker Chambers had been taken by Isaac Don Levine, a veteran anti-Stalinist, to see Adolf Berle in the State Department at the time of the Nazi-Soviet pact. Chambers had warned Berle that Communists had infiltrated the State Department. He named some names, trying to soften his blows a bit by referring to "Marxist study groups." When Berle passed the information up to President Roosevelt, he was, in effect, told to go fly a kite. Accordingly, the story did not break, and nothing was done about Chambers' warnings.

Nine years went by, and Stalin had been beating in a menacing way for a long time, when Ed Nellor wrote in the New York Sun that the House Un-American Activities Committee might really learn something about Communist subversion if it would only issue a subpoena to a prominent news magazine.

I happened to be in Whittaker Chambers' office at Time Magazine when the Sun, with Ed Nellor's story, was placed on Chambers' desk. Chambers turned white when he read it. "This means me," he said.

Making light of it, I remarked that people would only think well of the Chambers' patriotism if he went to Washington and told what he knew of the Communist conspiracy. (I did not, at the time, know anything about Chambers' connection with Alger Hiss.) Chambers refused to be jockeyed out of his depression over the Nellor story. "I always feared I'd have to cross this bridge," he said, "but I hoped not to." Then, looking down the hall toward the office of a ranking Time editor, he added glumly: "Besides, people around here don't like informers."

In due course, the subpoena to Chambers was issued. The Hiss case broke upon a startled nation, and, in time, Chambers wrote "Witness," his masterly Dostoevskian study of the operations of Communism in America which paid due attention to the dilemmas of a delicate conscience torn between the necessity of warning the nation and a candid distaste for exposing old friends.

The point about bringing up this episode from Ed Nellor's journalistic past is that Barry Goldwater has at his elbow a man who knows a great deal about the machinations of the Communist enemy. Maybe Nellor could make something of a piece by Harold P. Green, a lawyer and professor of law at George Washington University who was with the Atomic Energy Commission from 1950 to 1954. Writing in the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists for May, 1964, Mr. Green says, "I am personally aware of several cases in which the AEC has granted clearance to persons unable to obtain clearance in other agencies or persons who were discharged on security grounds by other agencies, or cases in which grave security problems were found by other agencies in the backgrounds of persons previously cleared by the AEC with full knowledge of the derogatory information which so troubled the other agencies."

Mr. Green apparently thinks rather well of the AEC for not having a "savage security program." He says "the concept of security has come a long way since the nightmarish aberrations of the early Eisenhower years." A Barry Goldwater who has recently looked with favor upon the foreign policy record of the Eisenhower-Dulles Administration, which protected Lebanon and refused to sacrifice Quemoy and Matsu, might not interpret the Eisenhower "concept of security" as a "nightmarish aberration." And maybe Barry Goldwater's Ed Nellor should suggest another subpoena.

For all this, the results have been spotty and inconclusive in some areas—and much hard work remains.

Some of it is being done at this convention, as registration specialists meet to single out specific target zones where the Democratic vote potential is deemed large.

OPINION POLLS GENERALLY GIVE JOHNSON 60 to 64 per cent of the nation's vote right now, and Goldwater 36 to 40 per cent. Democrats believe Goldwater's figure is a hard one, representing voters who almost surely will go to the polls.

Conversely, they see Johnson's bigger figure as soft—as a potential difficult to convert on Nov. 3.

Nevertheless, the President's strategists are optimistic. In the view of one, Johnson today has as much Democratic support as Kennedy had, has perhaps a 2 to 1 edge among independent voters (better than Kennedy), and may corral upwards of 20 per cent of the Republican vote (where Kennedy got hardly 10 per cent).

Top Democrats believe, then, that the stuff of a huge Johnson victory exists right now. They judge their task to be whipping the bushes to bring it out, and laboring at the same time to take the electric charge out of the backlash before it spells big votes for Goldwater.

A respected professional who thinks the backlash will indeed weaken among Democratic ethnic groups sums it up: "In the end, they'll trade their venom for their income."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

MADRID, Spain — There is serenity here, as though Hispania had disengaged itself from Europe and Africa, and was dozing in a hammock by itself. Along the edges of the Manzanares, the grass is bottle-green against the white sun and the poplars spin coins in the breeze. The Spanish government is aware of Cyprus and Vietnam, but the people are aware of bread.

The avenidas are broad and laced with trees. The only sound is the popping of motorcycles. The senoras ride side-saddle and hold onto their husbands. Farmers walk their donkey carts through the traffic and policemen in white helmets and white tunics bow the traffic to start and to stop.

The farmhouses on the plain have orange tile roofs and white-washed walls, and window boxes of geraniums. The peasant men wear blue denim slacks and berets; the women are full-figured and stare at the street from behind old shutters. The enemy here is not time; it is the sun. All the shops close at 1:30 and all Spaniards, including school-children, undress and go to bed and remain there until 4:30.

Then the shops open. So do the schools. Business goes on until 8 p. m. and then everyone washes and dresses for dinner. Most restaurants in the capital do not open until 9 p. m. and dinner goes on until midnight. The children sleep from that time until 8 a. m. and from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m.

Prices are much cheaper here than elsewhere. A good steak dinner at Casa Peco in Madrid antigua comes to $7 for four persons. This includes tip, and the steak — well, Kathleen, our 9-year-old blonde, calls it "heavenly" although she has never been able to finish one. On the other hand, she was valiant in finishing a huge plate of homemade ice cream.

The girls, Karen, 11, and Kathleen, are trying to understand what it means to be in Europe. They keep telling each other that they flew across the Atlantic Ocean in one night, although neither one saw water, and they only half believe their own propaganda. Karen's main interest on TWA Flight 902 was to see the motion picture which is shown after dinner. There is a screen which comes down at the head of the aisle, and each passenger has an earphone for sound.

The picture starred Jack Lemmon and, by the time dinner was over, both girls curled up on their seats and dozed for dinner. They awakened as the Boeing 707 was settling into Madrid, and they had no idea where

The Party Platforms: What They Don't Mean

phrase a widely publicized paradox uttered just a few weeks ago at the Republican National Convention, the political behavior of this convulse of the Democrats might well be epitomized as follows:

"Extremism in defense of hypocrisy is no vice. Moderation in pursuit of ambition is no virtue."

For it's more like a carnival here than a national assembly designed to nominate a candidate for election to the Presidency of the most powerful nation in the world. The atmosphere rather is that of a carefree reunion of politicians from all parts of the country. They know ahead of time what they are to do and just how to do it. They don't even have to worry about whom to select as Vice President, as this will be told them by the boss—Lyndon Johnson—in advance of the balloting. What he dictates will, of course, be ratified in a routine procedure—a vote by acclamation after a single roll call.

But the story here isn't who will be nominated for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket. It's the story that was apparent also at the Republican National Convention in San Francisco. It concerns the absolute indifference manifested toward the pious principle proclaimed by the Supreme Court of the United States in a recent decision calling for "one person, one vote." For there is no such thing as a vote by the citizen in most of the states of the Union in the process of selecting Presidential nominees. The convention system compels the country to choose in the November election between two candidates selected by groups of party bosses and politicians who rule the roost without benefit of a referendum or any other representative method of picking delegates to reflect voter desires or opinion.

The convention here this week is no exception to the rule. It is a big publicity stunt, reinforced now by nation-wide television, and by movies and singers on one day's program and then on another day solemn memorial services and eulogies.

There is nothing, moreover, in a party convention that could, by the remotest stretch of the imagination, be compared to the operations of a national legislative body composed of representative individuals versed in national and international affairs. Some members of Congress do participate in the writing of the party platforms, but the delegates from all over the country take what is handed to them by the party bosses and automatically approve it. If sometimes there is a dissent and a minority report is filed, this usually is claimed to be "on principle," but as a rule it is actually a transparent mechanism of politics designed by a rival faction to try to embarrass a would-be candidate, as happened at the San Francisco convention.

There are, of course, plenty of cynics here among the newsmen. They know from past observation that what is professed in a party platform or in campaign speeches is both ambiguous and partially misleading. When two major party conventions deal so arbitrarily with either national or international questions, it can be truly dangerous to the welfare of the people. Let one example be cited:

Just 48 years ago the slogan of the Democrats in the 1916 presidential campaign was "peace and prosperity." It was a phrase belated forth constantly at the Democratic National Convention, which was held at St. Louis, Mo. The keynote speaker was the Democratic Governor of New York, Martin H. Glynn. He described successive crises in America's international relations of those days, and praised President Wilson's part in the development of foreign policy. Recalling each international dispute, he would cry out: "And what did he do? He settled the matter by negotiation." There was a momentary pause, and the whole audience, in a low, would in every instance sing out: "And he kept us out of war!"

This dramatic stunt, repeated several times, was greeted with deafening applause and cheers. But exactly one month after the inauguration of Mr. Wilson for a second term, the same President was asking Congress to recognize a state of war, and the United States thus entered World War I.

Was the enemy deceived into thinking the American politicians would have enough influence to prevent resistance to the Kaiser's aggression, or that American military participation would come too late to save Europe?

In 1940, the Democratic Presidential nominee, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, campaigned successfully for a third term and promised the people they would be kept out of war. It is to be hoped that Khrushchev will not misread the campaign speeches of 1964 as did the autocratic governments which, respectively, forced America's entry into World War I and World War II.

they were, or even why.

Kathleen was determined to be as Spanish as possible, so, whenever a Spaniard made a fuss over her, no matter what he said, she smiled her sweetest and said "Gracias." This covered all situations, even when she was being asked her name. Karen said she knew 26 words in Spanish — taught to her by the nuns at St. Matthews in Hallandale, but she couldn't remember them. Anyway, she complained that the Spanish people said their words too fast for her to recall hers.

Yesterday, on the feast of Santo Domingo, they went to the Plaza de Toros to see the bull fights. I was worried, because three novilleros were fighting six bulls, and there is always a chance that a little girl will weep, or faint, when the bull is killed. The corrida lasted from 6:30 p. m. to 8:30, and the crowd roared its approval when the faenas were good, and whistled when the picadors were too zealous.

The little girls turned out to be blood-thirsty fiends. A young matador named Tomas Parra had his jewel-encrusted pants ripped off by the horns of a bull and our cherubs leaped to their feet screaming. "This," Karen said, "is the most exciting sport of all." They applauded dead bulls for bravery, mocked a torreador for losing his muleta and hopping the fence, and shrieked with mock horror when a bull knocked a picador off his horse and walked across his body.

Until now, all that occupied their minds were frilly clothes, and dolls. We had a Madrilenio driver, and he has only seen two or three thousand bull fights, so Karen explained the essence of the corrida to him. "It isn't cruelty, you know," she said. He seemed surprised. "The bull would be killed anyway, for his meat. No," she said, "the idea is to prove man's domination — you know this word domination? — over the fierce animals. The man is either brave and confident, or he is a coward."

The driver, a man named Polycarp, relaxed. "Ah," he said, "truth falls from the lips of the young." Kathleen looked at her mother: "Woddy say?" she said. This was the most we got out of Kathleen, because the five hours' difference in time between New York and Madrid had her confused.

She was tired all day and wide-awake all night. "The Spanish," she said once, "are our friends." I asked how she knew. "They're so polite to us," she said. "The maid even turns my bed down before I'm ready."

What else? "Well, that man Senor Pedrosa — you know, the minister? — he kissed my hand and nobody ever did that before."

Ah yes. That's important when you're nine, and still single. (Copyright, 1964, King Features Syndicate Inc.)

Dear Abby . . .

He's Not Logical!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine and I were looking over some magazines in a drug store. I am 14 and so is he. When we found two we wanted, we put our money down. The owner looked at the magazines and then he gave us a big lecture on how unsuitable the magazines were for decent people. He said they were nothing but trash and he wouldn't want any son of his reading them. He made us feel so cheap we didn't buy them. We want to ask you, Abby, if those magazines were nothing but "trash" and "unsuitable for decent people," what were they doing in his store in the first place?

GOOD QUESTION

DEAR GOOD: The question is better than "good." It's excellent. Why don't you go back and ask him?

DEAR ABBY: I was surprised at your answer disagreeing with the young couple "WILLING TO WAIT," who preferred buying their furniture as they could afford it, instead of using a lot of cast-off junk from their relatives' attics. They should have been commended for their attitude in this day when young couples buy everything on credit.

When my husband and I were married, we moved into an empty apartment with two suitcases. We slept on the floor until we could afford a bed. When so-called well-meaning relatives offered us odd pieces of old furniture, we politely refused. We enjoy our love nest all the more because we built it stick by stick together. Yours truly,

GLAD WE WAITED

DEAR GLAD: I don't know how long you and your husband slept on the floor, but if you were offered a bed and turned it down, it's nothing to brag about. I agree, young marrieds shouldn't go into debt in order to have everything immediately. But to refuse furniture because it is "old" is snobbish and impractical. Some "odd pieces" and cast-off "junk" have been transformed into handsome and useful furniture with a bit of sandpaper, paint and ingenuity.

DEAR ABBY: I laughed to myself when I read about the bride who said she would rather buy one "good" piece of furniture, as they could afford it, than to set up housekeeping with a lot of "junk" from her relatives' attics. When my husband and I were married five years ago, we furnished our home with discards from our relatives' attics, but I'm glad we did. Now we have three healthy, lively youngsters, all under four years of age. We don't have to worry about any of them getting jelly on our $500 living room sofa because we don't have one. Sign me—

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Some minks are going in for that polyunsaturated bit.

The idea is to get more lustrous and dense fur. This may brighten the lives of minks very little. But it gladdens some mink farmers, first; and later, it should please the ladies, too.

The polyunsaturated fatty acid diet was thought up originally for dogs, with the look of their pelts in mind rather than the condition of their hearts. Next, the feed mixture was given to horses. Then some mink farmers in Japan heard about it and tried it out. Now they are reported to be ordering it by the ton.

Diet Improves Shading

The Japanese said the polyunsaturated fatty acid diet improved the shading of sapphire and pastel mink. American mink farmers are trying it now and say it also increases the body weight of their animals.

As every woman knows, mink is a very important item, whether it's to own or to dream about. And if the shading and luster of their future fur coat can be improved over that in the coat the neighbor already has, no feed formula is too far out to be ignored.

There seems to be no saturation point, poly or otherwise, for the demand for mink, especially in the United States.

Pelts Output Gains

In 1951 this country produced 1,220,000 mink pelts. By 1962 the output had risen to 15 million pelts. This was 45 per cent of the world crop. There are many other reliable standbys on the fur market, but the gleam of mink still shines in countless American female eyes.

The luster diet isn't the only one offered minks. The Manitoba Fur and Game Station at the University of Manitoba in Canada uses a preparation called Lactocase as an economic replacement for red meat in the animals' rations.

A mixture of fresh meat by-products is the standard. But Lactocase is said to have a comparable amino acid pattern, and keeps the minks going at less cost to the farmer.

Executives Eats Mirracoat

The luster additive is called mirra-coat. At the Hampshire, Ill., plant of the Borden Special Products Co., its makers describe it as a balanced blend of polyunsaturated fatty acids, vitamins A, B6 and E, with other unspecified ingredients.

There's a report from a usually reliable source that one Manhattan corporate executive is sprinkling the powdered mirra-coat on his breakfast cereal. He thinks the tufts at the side of his otherwise bald head are growing faster.

But he won't be sure until fall, because in hot weather hair grows faster anyway.

First Principles of Blackwood

By OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

One of the first conventions a bridge player learns is Blackwood. This invaluable convention allows a player to find out how many aces and kings his partner holds. The procedure is to bid four no-trump whereupon partner shows aces as follows:

Five clubs, no aces or four aces.

Five diamonds, one ace.

Five hearts, two aces.

Five spades, three aces.

Then, in order to ask for kings, bid five no-trump, whereupon partner shows kings in the same manner.

Today's hand is a perfect hand for Blackwood. Only the South hand and the start of the bidding is given. The rest is not necessary. After South bids four no-trump he will bid five spades if his partner shows no aces, six spades if he shows one and seven spades or even seven no-trump if he shows two.

Blackwood has one conspicuous weakness. There are occasions when you want to use four no-trump as a strong bid in no-trump and not a demand to show aces.

If you want to use it in the simple way shown in this article, you will be using a good working convention.

Seek Extension Of Rt. 199 Due To Bridge Jams

Increasing traffic on the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge evidences the dire need to have Route 199 rebuilt as an extension of U. S. Route 209 which links state roads in Ulster County with the west end of the bridge, according to George L. Brickwedde, Miller-ton.

The Dutchess county man is president of the Northern Dutchess Development Committee which has been campaigning for a new Route 199, running from the bridge eastward to Route 44 near Millerton.

Brickwedde said the organization's proposal has been supported by Assemblyman R. Watson Pomeroy (R), candidate for the State Senate; Eugene F. Frink, of Pawling, first assistant district attorney in Dutchess county and Republican candidate for the Assembly; and Poughkeepsie's mayor Victor C. Waryas, Democratic candidate for the Assembly.

Brickwedde stated that definite indication of the growing traffic on the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge was presented by Edward J. Burns, State Bridge Authority administrative officer, at a recent meeting of the Northern Dutchess Development Committee.

The NDCC president was quoted as saying, "Burns feels that the big reason for this increase in traffic on the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge is the fact that Route 209 now comes directly to the bridge, so that more and more people are using one route instead of several. The trouble is that when people reach the bridge, they wonder what happened to Route 209."

SEEK EXTENSION — 2

Brickwedde made known that a letter is being sent to Congressman J. Ernest Wharton in Washington seeking his interest in the proposal to extend Route 209 across the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge and through Dutchess County.

"If Route 209 is extended, it would connect with the north-south arteries of Route 9, the Taconic Parkway and Route 22 in addition to Route 44 and continuing on into Connecticut," Brickwedde said.

Brickwedde said plans are underway for a meeting in September with M. Nicholas Sinacori, district engineer of the State Public Works Department to discuss the proposal for a new Route 199.

Hurricane Cleo, leaving 14 dead on the French island of Guadalupe, sideswiped Puerto Rico's coast and headed toward southwestern Haiti and parts of the Dominican Republic.

Besides showers early today in Nebraska, Minnesota and Montana, rains fell in areas from southern Texas to the middle Atlantic Coast.

Temperatures, the weather bureau said, were nothing out of the ordinary.

Paltz Professor Works on Study Of Genes Control

Arnold Nemerofsky, assistant professor of biology at the State University College at New Paltz, has been involved in a research project sponsored by the National Science Foundation at the University of Georgia since June 5.

Working with Dr. H. B. Howe Jr. in the Department of Bacteriology, Mr. Nemerofsky has been studying new ways to produce genetic mutations in the fungus Neurospora crassa. Earlier studies with this fungus led Nobel prize winning workers to find how genes control the activities of living cells. Nemerofsky and Howe have been trying entirely new approaches for producing genetically altered organisms in order to get more and more precise knowledge of the genes of this and related species.

Mr. Nemerofsky is one of six college teachers in the Research Participation for College Teachers program at the University of Georgia. The National Science Foundation sponsors these programs to improve the quality of science teaching in American colleges.

Will Offer Mass In English Today, First in the U. S.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Joseph Cardinal Ritter, host prelate for the 25th annual National Liturgical Week, sees today's opening session as publicizing changes being made in Roman Catholic worship without disturbing doctrine.

Key feature of the four-day meeting of some 15,000 delegates — from bishops to parishioners — is celebration of the Mass in English late today for the first time in the United States.

The English-language Mass will be effective throughout the country Nov. 29. Other countries will be able to celebrate it in their own languages too.

Cardinals View
The Ecumenical Council, said Cardinal Ritter, 72-year-old archbishop of St. Louis "desires the church to be alerted to be adapted to our times, and also to show forth the church in a better light to the world."

The conference will discuss in a workshop atmosphere changes in church reform and progress. They range from replacement of Latin by English in the Mass to new concepts of church art and music.

Cardinal Ritter had a lead role during the two Vatican councils in obtaining approval for English usage in the Mass. He also has been a leader in promoting other changes in church liturgy.

Formal Body
The liturgical conference is the formal Catholic body concerned with Christian worship. It comprises educators, Bible scholars, musicians, artists and others involved in church liturgy.

The first of four English-language Masses will be celebrated at 5 p.m. at Kiel Auditorium in downtown St. Louis. Cardinal Ritter will celebrate another Tuesday — feast of St. Louis IX, king of France and patron of the city.

Negro Assembly Denies Backing To LBJ, Goldwater

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The newly formed National Negro Republican Assembly has denied its support to both Sen. Barry Goldwater, the GOP presidential nominee, and President Johnson, on the Democratic side.

Negro Republican leaders formed the assembly Sunday. They termed it a vibrant organization with a political action policy designed to give the Negro a stronger voice in what the Republican party does.

George G. Fleming, of East Orange, N.J., was named president.

According to Fleming, 50 Negro leaders attended the Philadelphia convention. Most of them were delegates or alternates to the San Francisco convention.

"I think a vast majority of Negroes in this country subscribe to our views," said Fleming.

The assembly's next meeting was scheduled for Washington on Sept. 19.

Miss Miller Is To Be Busy With Dad, Goldwater

NEW YORK (AP) — Elizabeth (Libby) Miller, eldest daughter of Rep. William E. Miller, Republican vice presidential candidate, attended a backyard reception and feast given by the Young Republican Club of Queens Sunday.

Miss Miller, a slim and attractive 20-year-old senior at Newton College in Boston, circulated in the crowd of 70 and posed for photos.

Miss Miller said she regretted having to leave her job as a hostess and guide at the New York State Pavilion at the World's Fair last Tuesday. Speaking of increasing political demands, she said: "It just got impossible."

"At first I thought I wouldn't be very active, but now that I've been picked as co-chairman of youth for Goldwater-Miller-Barry Jr. is the other co-chairman—it looks as if I'll be going all over the country."

Miss Miller said that before hitting the campaign trail she will spend a week or so at her family cottage on Lake Ontario, near her home town of Lockport, N.Y.

Resnick Refutes

feller two years ago.

Resnick said today, "The statement of the Building Trades Council was completely misleading and false. It indicated that I had picked myself as being picked. This was totally refuted by one of Mr. Yerry's own fukes, Oscar Clopton, of Local 17 in Monticello. Clopton told Martin Oslas, my publicity director on Friday that he wasn't even sure who was picking."

Resnick said he thought that he and the other picket were demonstrating against a construction firm building the new warehouse. He further stated that he was getting $3.40 an hour for carrying his placard.

Not A Manager

Resnick said that he is chairman of the board of Channel Master Corp. but has no active part in the firm's management for the past seven years. He said he is actively engaged in the operation of the Queston-American plastics research and development firm also headquartered in Ellenville.

Resnick continued that "this move by Mr. Yerry is obviously an attempt to smear me and the Channel Master firm. Yerry knows as well as I do that Channel Master is not in the construction business and lets its construction contracts to firms engaged in that business."

Resnick said there is "no doubt in my mind that this deliberate attack on me was engineered by Mr. Yerry and other Republicans as an attempt to discredit me in the eyes of the voters of the 28th Congressional District. It is no secret that Mr. Yerry is a Republican and is a labor adviser to Governor Rockefeller."

May Win Seat

The candidate also said "it is quite apparent that my active campaign for the Congressional seat from this district has gotten under the skin of more than one Republican and they are beginning to think I might win. This is their way of trying to slow down my growing support. I am gratified that Mr. Yerry considers me that serious a threat to the Republican held Congressional seat."

"Ordinarily I would not even take time to answer such a irresponsible statement as was issued Friday, but I did think the voters of the district are entitled to know the true facts and not the falsehoods and misrepresentations made public then."

"I would also like to take this opportunity to remind Mr. Yerry that my campaign has been fully endorsed by the United Steel Workers of America, New York Division and that I am working closely with Mr. Joseph Amato, president of the Hudson Valley Brick Salvagers Union in an attempt to salvage the local brick industry."

Yerry replied that the action "to picket the construction job at Channel Master Corp. was the decision of all the building and trade councils. Of the 16 delegates only three are Republicans."

Commenting on the report that a picket said he is getting $3.40 an hour for picketing, Yerry said, "if he gets it I don't know where the money is coming from."

He stated emphatically that the decision to picket was not his action.

Referring to the McDole Construction Co., reportedly building a warehouse for Channel Master, Yerry said "the telephone book lists the McDole company as Ellenville." Commenting on Resnick's assertion that he has been chairman of the Board for Channel Master the last seven years, and he isn't aware of what is going on, Yerry said, "If he has held that office seven years and doesn't know what is going on would he know what is going on if he is elected Congressman?"

Yerry stated that he personally had endorsed Gore Vidal, a Democrat, for Congress when Vidal was a candidate. This endorsement, Yerry said, was made by him at a convention at the Concord Hotel when Yerry said Vidal was the "logical man for the office."

A spokesman for Doctor's ambulance service said today that Margaret Solis, 17, of New York City, was removed Friday night from the Rifton Hotel to Benedictine Hospital for treatment for mouth and eye injuries. No further details were available.

Woman Is Hurt In Rt. 28 Crash Near Boiceville

Collision involving two cars on Route 28 at Boiceville at 3:15 p. m. Sunday, resulted in injury to a 19-year-old West Coxsackie woman, according to Kingston State Police.

Sergeant Henry S. Rhodes said the cars were driven by Elmer G. Perry, 33, of 201 Hinsdale Street, city, and Edward Gould, 23, of 405 Howard Street, Syracuse, who was attempting a left turn at the time of the mishap.

According to a report of Troopers Thomas Searles and W. E. Wiedmann, Margaret Cierle, a passenger in Gould's car sustained a whiplash. She said she would see her own physician, troopers said.

Johnson Aims ...

produced a plank pledging "fair and effective enforcement of the new civil rights laws. This was about what the Republicans promised, in different language. Lawrence said the pledge that was sought was of the same type required of members of the Democratic National Committee.

Text of Pledge
The pledge reads: "It is the duty of every member of the Democratic National Committee to declare affirmatively for the nominees of the convention, and that his or her failure to do so shall be cause for the Democratic National Committee or its duly authorized subcommittee to declare his or her seat vacant after notice and opportunity for hearing."

The fight over the Mississippi delegation was dramatized early today when 75 Negro and white demonstrators sat on the boardwalk in front of Convention Hall and vowed to remain there until the Mississippi Freedom group was seated.

Whatever happens on the civil rights plank and on the Mississippi delegation contest, there seemed little likelihood of any significant Southern walkout. Humphrey, among others, came up with a forecast that the difficulties would be ironed out without a bolt.

Others Mentioned
Pacing along with Humphrey in the non-contest for second place on the ticket were Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota and Mike Mansfield of Montana. There was also talk of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., undersecretary of commerce, because Johnson continued to regard the late president with high esteem.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California, mentioned as a possibility, had a "feeling," he said, that it would be Humphrey. Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City said he "would certainly accept" the nomination but wasn't sitting around dreaming about getting it.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy resigned Sunday as a Massachusetts delegate, asking that he be replaced by Joan Kennedy, wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. This action was preliminary to his expected resignation from the Cabinet to seek the seat now filled by GOP Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of New York.

In their platform, the Democrats made "peace for all peoples" their overriding goal.

In pointed contrast to the Republican platform, it was learned that the Democrats planned to include a thrust at political extremism, naming as targets the Ku Klux Klan, the John Birch Society, and the Communist party. The Republicans, after a floor fight, refused to include a plank on extremism naming the John Birch Society and the Klan.

Committeemen Ask Withdrawal Of Conservatives

NEW YORK (AP) — New York State's two Republican national committee members fought to stop Clare Boothe Luce's entry as Conservative party candidate against Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating and possibly Democrat Robert F. Kennedy.

The two committee members wired National Chairman Dean Burch, threatening to withdraw support of the national ticket headed by Sen. Barry Goldwater if Goldwater's supporters in New York continue to back Mrs. Luce and 58 Conservative candidates for lesser offices.

In Buffalo, Rep. William E. Miller, Republican vice presidential candidate, said neither he nor Goldwater controls the Conservative party.

Will Offer Mass In English Today, First in the U. S.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Joseph Cardinal Ritter, host prelate for the 25th annual National Liturgical Week, sees today's opening session as publicizing changes being made in Roman Catholic worship without disturbing doctrine.

Key feature of the four-day meeting of some 15,000 delegates — from bishops to parishioners — is celebration of the Mass in English late today for the first time in the United States.

The English-language Mass will be effective throughout the country Nov. 29. Other countries will be able to celebrate it in their own languages too.

Cardinals View
The Ecumenical Council, said Cardinal Ritter, 72-year-old archbishop of St. Louis, "desires the church to be alerted to be adapted to our times, and also to show forth the church in a better light to the world."

The conference will discuss in a workshop atmosphere changes in church reform and progress. They range from replacement of Latin by English in the Mass to new concepts of church art and music.

Cardinal Ritter had a lead role during the two Vatican councils in obtaining approval for English usage in the Mass. He also has been a leader in promoting other changes in church liturgy.

Formal Body
The liturgical conference is the formal Catholic body concerned with Christian worship. It comprises educators, Bible scholars, musicians, artists and others involved in church liturgy.

The first of four English-language Masses will be celebrated at 5 p.m. at Kiel Auditorium in downtown St. Louis. Cardinal Ritter will celebrate another Tuesday — feast of St. Louis IX, king of France and patron of the city.

NEW YORK (AP) — Elizabeth (Libby) Miller, eldest daughter of Rep. William E. Miller, Republican vice presidential candidate, attended a backyard reception and feast given by the Young Republican Club of Queens Sunday.

Miss Miller, a slim and attractive 20-year-old senior at Newton College in Boston, circulated in the crowd of 70 and posed for photos.

Miss Miller said she regretted having to leave her job as a hostess and guide at the New York State Pavilion at the World's Fair last Tuesday. Speaking of increasing political demands, she said: "It just got impossible."

At first I thought I wouldn't be very active, but now that I've been picked as co-chairman of youth for Goldwater-Miller-Barry Jr. is the other co-chairman—it looks as if I'll be going all over the country."

Miss Miller said that before hitting the campaign trail she will spend a week or so at her family's cottage on Lake Ontario, near her home town of Lockport, N.Y.

Resnick Refutes

fellet two years ago."

Resnick said today, "The statement of the Building Trades Council was completely misleading and false. It indicated that Channel Master itself was being picketed. This was totally refuted by one of Mr. Yerry's own pickets, Oscar Clifton, of Local 17 in Monticello. Clifton told me that he was picketing on Friday that he wasn't even sure who was picketing. Clifton said he thought that he and the one other picket were demonstrating against a construction firm building the new warehouse. He further stated that he was getting $340 an hour for carrying his placard."

Not A Manager
Resnick said that he is chairman of the board of Channel Master Corp. but has no active part in the firm's management for the past seven years. He said he is actively engaged in the operation of the Questrom-American, a plastics research and development firm also headquartered in Ellenville.

Resnick continued that "this move by Mr. Yerry is obviously an attempt to smear me and the Channel Master firm. Yerry knows as well as I do that Channel Master is not in the construction business and lets its construction contracts to firms engaged in that business."

Resnick said there is "no doubt in my mind that this deliberate attack on me was engineered by Mr. Yerry and other Republicans as an attempt to discredit me in the eyes of the voters of the 28th Congressional District. It is no secret that Mr. Yerry is a Republican and is a labor adviser to Governor Rockefeller."

May Win Seat
The candidate also said "it is quite apparent that my active campaign for the Congressional seat from this district has gotten under the skin of more than one Republican. They are here to tell me that they are beginning to think I might win. This is their way of trying to slow down my growing support. I am gratified that Mr. Yerry considers me that serious a threat to the Republican held Congressional seat."

"Ordinarily I would not even take time to answer such an irresponsible statement as was issued Friday, but I did think the voters of the district are entitled to know the true facts and not the falsehoods and misrepresentations made public then."

"I would also like to take this opportunity to remind Mr. Yerry that my campaign has been fully endorsed by the United Steel Workers of America, New York Division and that I am working closely with Mr. Joseph Amato, president of the Hudson Valley Brick Handlers Union in an attempt to salvage the local brick industry."

Commenting on the report that a picket said he is getting $340 an hour for picketing, Yerry said, "if he gets it I don't know where the money is coming from."

He stated emphatically that the decision to picket was not his action.

Referring to the McDole Construction Co., reportedly building a warehouse for Channel Master, Yerry said "the telephone book lists the McDole company as Ellenville." Commenting on Resnick's assertion that he has been chairman of the Board for Channel Master the last seven years, and he isn't aware of what is going on, Yerry said, "If he has held that office seven years and doesn't know what is going on would he know what is going on if he is elected Congressman?"

Yerry stated that he personally had endorsed Gore Vidal, a Democrat, for Congress when Vidal was a candidate. This endorsement, Yerry said, was made by him at a convention at the Concord Hotel when Yerry said Vidal was the "logical man for the office."

Taken to Hospital
A spokesman for Doctor's ambulance service said today that Margaret Solis, 17, of New York City, was removed Friday night from the Rifton Hotel to Benedictine Hospital for treatment for mouth and eye injuries. No further details were available.

Collision involving two cars on Route 28 at Boiceville at 3:15 p. m. Sunday, resulted in injuries to a 19-year-old West Coxsackie woman, according to Kingston State Police.

Johnson Aims ...

produced a plank pledging "fair and effective enforcement" of the new civil rights law. This was about what the Republicans promised, in different language.

Lawrence said the pledge that was sought was of the same type required of members of the Democratic National Committee.

Text of Pledge
The pledge reads: "It is the duty of every member of the Democratic National Committee to declare affirmatively for the nominees of the convention, and that his or her failure to do so shall be cause for the Democratic National Committee or its duly authorized subcommittee to declare his or her seat vacant after notice and opportunity for hearing."

The fight over the Mississippi delegation was dramatized early today when 75 Negro and white demonstrators sat on the boardwalk in front of Convention Hall and vowed to remain there until the Mississippi Freedom group was seated.

Whatever happens on the civil rights plank and on the Mississippi delegation contest, there seemed little likelihood of any significant Southern walkout.

Humphrey, among others, came up with a forecast that the difficulties would be ironed out without a bolt.

Others Mentioned
Pacing along with Humphrey in the non-contest for second place on the ticket were Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota and Mike Mansfield of Montana. There was also talk of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., undersecretaries of commerce, because Johnson continued to regard the late president with high esteem.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California, mentioned as a possible challenger, said he "feeling" he said, that it would be Humphrey, Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City said he "would certainly accept" the nomination but wasn't sitting around dreaming about getting it.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy resigned Sunday as a Massachusetts delegate, asking that he be replaced by Joan Kennedy, wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. This action was preliminary to his expected resignation from the Cabinet to seek the seat now filled by GOP Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of New York.

In their platform, the Democrats made "peace for all nations and freedom for all peoples" their overriding goal.

In pointed contrast to the Republican platform, it was learned that the Democrats planned to include a thrust at political extremism, naming as targets the Ku Klux Klan, the John Birch Society, and the Communist party. The Republicans, after a floor fight, refused to include a plank on extremism naming the John Birch Society and the Klan.

The truck was parked at the Van Kleef plant about 5:30 p. m. Friday. When the owner arrived about 7 a. m. Saturday at the scene the GE radio equipment was missing from the truck. The truck had been stripped of all of the radio equipment.

Committeemen Ask Withdrawal Of Conservatives
NEW YORK (AP) — New York State's two Republican national committee members fought to stop Clare Boothe Luce's entry as Conservative party candidate against Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating and possibly Democrat Robert F. Kennedy.

The two committee members wired National Chairman Dean Burch, threatening to withdraw support of the national ticket headed by Sen. Barry Goldwater if Goldwater's supporters in New York continue to back Mrs. Luce and 58 Conservative candidates for lesser offices.

In Buffalo, Rep. William E. Miller, Republican vice presidential candidate, said neither he nor Goldwater controls the Conservative party.

Kennedy's still unannounced candidacy gained momentum at the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City, N.J. Kennedy resigned as a delegate from Massachusetts, obviously preparing to enter the New York race. His announcement is expected Tuesday.

LBJ Not Even Hinting

Convention Democrats Can Only Guess on VP

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The 5,260 delegates and alternates at this national convention have two things in common: they're Democrats and they don't know who Lyndon Johnson wants for vice president.

In fact, they don't even know if the President has made up his mind about a running mate, for he isn't saying. He isn't even hinting.

So the guessing game continues, with only one thing certain — by Wednesday night the mantle will have fallen on someone. Like last week and the weeks before that, the names being mentioned most are Minnesota's two liberal Democratic senators, Hubert H. Humphrey and the professor he persuaded to go into politics, Eugene J. McCarthy.

They appeared separately Sunday night on NBC's "Meet the Press," said separately they had not discussed the vice presidency with Johnson and collectively left little doubt they wouldn't mind being his running mate.

Afterward, they received a telephone call from the White House, spoke separately to the President and appeared jubilant. Quipped Humphrey: "Well, we're both in. He's going to take both of us."

The rumor mills also are working over these other names: California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York, Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. and Gov. Matthew Welsh of Indiana.

Lane Pays $20 Fine

Accused of stealing a portable radio from Lewis' Garage in Ellenville, on August 14, Edward William Lane, 17, of Berne Road, that community, was arrested Saturday by State Trooper Francis Steiner. Lane pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Herbert Poppel, Town of Wawarsing, and was fined $20, which was paid, according to Sergeant William Cameron.

Witness Says He Told Shockey How To Appear Insane

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A jail cellmate of Herbert Shockey, accused of killing a Sherrill, N.Y., couple, says he coached Shockey on how to answer psychiatrists' questions in order to appear insane.

Robert W. Hartford, 24, serving a prison term for robbery, testified at Shockey's trial Saturday that he coached Shockey while the two shared a cell last March in the Maricopa County Jail.

Hartford said he told Shockey to "think of evil things to say" when taking mental tests.

The defense maintains Shockey should be found innocent, by reason of insanity, of the slayings of Mr. and Mrs. John Bertella. Their bodies were found last Feb. 24 in the Superstition Mountain area near Apache Junction, Ariz.

A psychiatrist and a psychologist testified earlier in the trial that they believed Shockey to be deranged.

Another psychiatrist testified Saturday, however, that he thought Shockey was "simulating" mental illness. Dr. Mair Tuchler said he thought Shockey was manipulating his answers on mental tests.

The trial entered its third week today.

Fair Officials Thank Volunteer City Departments

The 1964 Ulster County Fair closed with one of the largest horse shows in its long history and drew the largest crowd of visitors last Thursday. One hundred and eleven horses were entered in the open classes. One class, stock horses, had 34 horses entered to compete for four cash premiums offered. It was a long and hard day for the judge.

The last class was not completed until close to 8 p. m. C. Chester DuMont Jr., president of the Ulster County Agricultural Society, sponsor of the fair, and Albert Kurdt, manager of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce and secretary of the fair, joined in making the statement that the 1964 Fair was one of the most successful and expressed appreciation for the large amount of work done by the many volunteers and the several departments of the city which helped materially.

Special mention was made of the Recreation Department. A great deal of extra help was needed to clean up the park and restore it to a useful and attractive condition. The Police Department was also mentioned for the extra help needed to keep the extra heavy traffic moving. At one time on Thursday, the entire Dietz Memorial Stadium parking lot, as well as every available square foot of parking space in Forsyth Park, were filled with cars. The Department of Public Works provided the water tank and judges stand.

the extremely dry conditions which prevailed caused a minimum of damage to the lower baseball diamond where the show ring was located and all the cattle and horse judging took place. Unfortunately some of the horses were ridden on the Little League baseball field in the upper portion of Forsyth Park and did some damage to this well kept field. Fair officials did not know this was taking place and expressed the hope that all horse riding enthusiasts would refrain from riding horses on this fenced field at all times. It is not known whether horses entered in the fair, or just ridden to the park, trespassed on this baseball diamond.

LBJ Not Even Hinting

Convention Democrats
Can Only Guess on VP

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—

The 5,260 delegates and alternates at this national convention have two things in common: they're Democrats and they don't know who Lyndon Johnson wants for vice president.

In fact, they don't even know if the President has made up his mind about a running mate, for he isn't saying. He isn't even hinting.

So the guessing game continues, with only one thing certain — by Wednesday night the mantle will have fallen on someone.

Like last week and the weeks before that, the names being mentioned most are Minnesota's two liberal Democratic senators, Hubert H. Humphrey and the professor he persuaded to go into politics, Eugene J. McCarthy.

They appeared separately Sunday night on NBC's "Meet the Press," said separately they had not discussed the vice presidency with Johnson and collectively left little doubt they wouldn't mind being his running mate.

Afterward, they received a telephone call from the White House, spoke separately to the President and appeared jubilant. Quipped Humphrey: "Well, we're both in. He's going to take both of us."

The rumor mills also are working over these other names: California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York, Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. and Gov. Matthew Welsh of Indiana.

Lane Pays $20 Fine

Accused of stealing a portable radio from Lewis' Garage in Ellenville, on August 14, Edward William Lane, 17, of Berne Road, that community, was arrested Saturday by State Trooper Francis Steiner. Lane pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Herbert Poppel, Town of Wawarsing, and was fined $20, which was paid, according to Sergeant William Cameron.

Witness Says He Told Shockley How To Appear Insane

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A jail cellmate of Herbert Shockley, accused of killing a Sherrill, N.Y., couple, says he coached Shockley on how to answer psychiatrists' questions in order to appear insane.

Robert W. Hartford, 24, serving a prison term for robbery, testified at Shockley's trial Saturday that he coached Shockley while the two shared a cell last March in the Maricopa County Jail.

Hartford said he told Shockley to "think of evil things to say" when taking mental tests.

The defense maintains Shockley should be found innocent, by reason of insanity, of the slayings of Mr. and Mrs. John Bertha. Their bodies were found last Feb. 24 in the Superstition Mountain area near Apache Junction, Ariz.

A psychiatrist and a psychologist testified earlier in the trial that they believed Shockley to be deranged.

"Every time I had to go before the public I was terrified. It's a strange feeling to find suddenly that wherever you go there will be girls screaming and tearing at you."

But how long would the notoriously fickle teenagers go on buying? Fabian was barely 18 when he gave the matter some thought.

"The first time I thought that I might have a future in the acting business was when I did 'North to Alaska' with John Wayne," he said. "I got the first good reviews I had ever received."

He decided to make a clean break. He paid off the contract with his discoverer-manager. He started serious study of dramatics. And he stopped singing.

"But producers told me they were buying Fabian, not an actor named Fabian Forte," he said. "That's all right with me — as long as they keep buying."

"Jus' gimme a light trim aroun' th' eyebrows!"

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — CBS had a sort of sneak preview Monday of its new team of co-anchorwomen, Robert out and Roger Mudd.

The "break-in performance," as Trout called it, came from a booth overlooking the auditorium where the Democratic National Convention opens tonight. Trout was correct in using the show business term, "performance," because "television coverage is closely related to show business and its personalities, to actors."

But the two leads who have succeeded Walter Cronkite in the network's news troupe cannot be evaluated on the basis of Sunday evening's appearances. They merely presided over a news program and there was really no chance to see either in ad lib operation.

However, Trout, a silken-voiced man whose saturnine face belies a quietly droll manner, seems slated to handle the lighter side of convention goings-on. Mudd, good-looking and on the serious, incisive side, seems happier with hard-news approach.

There are about two broadcasting employ working on the convention for every five delegates, and it seemed that all of them were busy Sunday. A viewer could have kept his eyes almost constantly on either the Convention Hall or the Atlantic City boardwalk from noon until bedtime.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota who seems to be exercising choice for the vice presidential nomination, popped up on the screen almost as often as the commercials.

He was first on ABC's "Discovery" program, followed with "Meet the Press" quizzing and was scheduled to turn up again on ABC's convention preview, although I missed that. He fielded all questions neatly, praising his party, his president and explaining his philosophy.

With only a few subjects of any real suspense — the President's choice of a vice presidential candidate, and the seating of two Southern delegations — all networks were put to a test in drumming up interest in the events of the next few days.

Fabian Strives For New Image

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Take a Philadelphia teen-ager off a front porch, give him the handle of Fabulous Fabian, make him a pop singer even if he can't sing, expose him to the screams of frantic females, put him into the bigtime with veteran stars. What happens afterwards?

Survives It All
In the case of Fabian, it is a wonder that he didn't end up shattered as a person and forgotten as a personality. Now 21, he seems to have survived.
Fabian had just finished a role with James Stewart in "Dear Brigitte". The lad was preparing to leave on a tour to plug "Ride the Wild Surf," in which he starred for Columbia.
It was to be his first extensive meeting with the public in three years, during which he has striven to escape the anonymity that threatens all teen-age idols.
The Fabian saga was etched in the hearts of millions of young girls—how he was discovered in front of his own home by the mentor of Frankie Avalon, how he was manufactured into a star in one of the greatest selling campaigns since the Edsel.
His memory of those early days: "I don't remember anything about the performances. I got on the stage, did the songs and got off without the slightest recollection of what had happened."

Terrified by Public

"Every time I had to go before the public I was terrified. It's a strange feeling to find suddenly that wherever you go there will be girls screaming and tearing at you."

But how long would the notoriously fickle teen-agers go on buying? Fabian was barely 18 when he gave the matter some thought.

"The first time I thought that I might have a future in the acting business was when I did 'North to Alaska' with John Wayne," he said. "I got the first good reviews I had ever received."

He decided to make a clean break. He paid off the contract with his discoverer-manager. He started serious study of dramatics. And he stopped singing. He hasn't made a record in three years.

As part of his campaign for a new image, he even proposed resuming the use of his last name, which is Forte.
"But producers told me they were buying Fabian, not an actor named Fabian Forte," he said. "That's all right with me—as long as they keep buying."

STONE RIDGE — A science film, "The City of the Bees," will be shown 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the American Legion Hall, Route 209, Stone Ridge.

Teenagers and adults of the Marlborough community may attend. There is no admission charge but a free will offering will be taken to defray the cost of film rental.

A vacation Bible school has been in session since Aug. 17 at the Legion Hall. All children of the community kindergarten through sixth grade may attend the interdenominational Bible school.

Both the vacation Bible school and the science film are sponsored by Hart's Book Shoppe, Stone Ridge.

New Convention Team Breaks In For Big Parley

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — CBS had a sort of sneak preview Sunday of its new team of convention anchormen. Robert Trout and Roger Mudd.

The "break-in performance," as Trout called it, came from a booth overlooking the auditorium where the Democratic National Convention opens tonight. Trout was correct in using a show business term, "performance," because television coverage is closely related to show business and its personalities, to actors.

But the two leads who have succeeded Walter Cronkite in the network's news troupe cannot be evaluated on the basis of Sunday evening's appearances. They merely presided over a news program and there was really no chance to see either in ad lib operation.

However, Trout, a silken voiced man whose saturnine face belies a quietly droll manner, seems slated to handle the lighter side of convention goings-on. Mudd, good-looking and on the serious, incisive side, seems happier with hard-news approach.

There are about two broadcasting employees working on covery" program, followed with a "Meet the Press" quizzing delegates, and it seemed that all of them were busy Sunday. A viewer could have kept his eyes almost constantly on either the Convention Hall or the Atlantic City boardwalk from noon until bedtime.

Son, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota who seems to be everybody's choice for the vice presidential nomination, popped up on the screen almost as often as the commercials.

He was first on ABC's "Dis-events of the next few days.

Stops Attacks in Minutes... Relief Lasts for Hours!

New York, N. Y. (Special)—The asthma formula prescribed more than any other by doctors for their private patients is now available to asthma sufferers without prescription.

Medical tests proved this formula stops asthma attacks in minutes and gives hours of freedom from recurrence of painful asthma spasms.

This formula is so effective that it is the physician's leading asthma prescription—so safe when used as directed that now it can be sold without prescription in most states.

—in tiny tablets called Primatene®. These Primatene Tablets open bronchial tubes, loosen congestion, relieve taut nervous tension. All without painful injections.

The secret is—Primatene combines 3 medicines (in full prescription strength) found most effective in combination for asthma distress. Each performs a special purpose.

So look forward to sleep at night, and freedom from asthma spasms. Get Primatene at any drugstore.

Oil's Well

Gasoline consumption hit an all-time peak during June, 1964. Daily demand exceeded five million barrels. The petroleum industry is a sound growth industry whose future prosperity will not be affected by events in Vietnam, Berlin, or Cuba.

World conditions greatly influence the emotions of millions of investors. That is why in these uncertain days clear-minded stockholders should not be stampeded into selling good stocks when the social news in America and the military news from abroad is unfavorable.

By 1970, many more cars and trucks will be traveling America's highways. And that means that in five and ten years, gasoline consumption will be much higher than it is today.

Seven of the big petroleum enterprises in America — Standard Oil of New Jersey (the world's largest), Standard Oil of Indiana, Standard Oil of California, Royal Dutch, Gulf, Socony Mobil, and Texaco, are together doing an annual business around $35,000,000,000.

Standard Oil of New Jersey alone sells more than $10 billion a year. Second in size is Royal Dutch, Socony, Gulf, and Texaco do an annual business of $3 billion each, plus.

A professional man with an annual income of more than $100,000 asked me today what stocks he could buy for growth and income with some of his sizable savings.

He owns and drives two Cadillacs. I said to him: "Buy the common stocks of the two corporations you are helping to make prosperous: General Motors and Standard Oil of New Jersey."

Unquestionably, America with all her domestic and foreign problems will be beset by troubles that will disturb the peace and the equanimity of countless investors. But, regardless of these conditions, the economic life of 190,000,000 people in our country will still function with a degree of stability.

And the petroleum industry is one that will function through thick and thin.

Oil's well with this activity. The seven stocks mentioned here have ready markets. Standard Oil of New Jersey has about 700,000 stockholders. Considering its annual sales volume of more than ten billion dollars, it should have two million owners.

Royal Dutch, with annual sales through nine billion dollars, is a sound growth equity that should command greater investor attention.

On the Pacific Coast where thousands of inexperienced investors buy second- and third-grade stocks every year, Standard Oil of California—a high-grade equity—should have a million stockholders instead of the present 200,000.

Any well-diversified portfolio might well have at least 20 per cent of its total worth invested in some of these seven prime petroleum stocks.

Investors in small towns and cities throughout America will find a good market for these shares in leading cities near them where brokers on principal exchanges are capable of handling buy and sell orders of any size.

The oil wealth of America should be more widely distributed than it is.

The Forum

It's invisible. . .but you can hear it, you can feel it, you can sense it at The State of New York National Bank.

We have spent money to create this asset. But, more important, we have expended a great deal of time, thought and effort in its creation.

It's that intangible but every important asset of goodwill. Goodwill is a multitude of small items. . .it is the matter of always putting customer interests first, of working closely with a customer on his needs and of remembering to do freely and frequently the many little things over and above the requirements of a routine business transaction to show appreciation for patronage. Building goodwill, with us, is a full-time job.

We believe it is appreciated. Why else would The State of New York National Bank be the fastest growing commercial bank in the area?

Nash Is Graduate Of OSU Under Air Force Plan

Air Force Captain Robert A. Nash, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Nash of 5 Orchard Street, Hurley, graduated Aug. 8, from Oklahoma State University with a M. S. degree in electrical engineering.

Captain Nash studied under the Air Force Institute of Technology education program. The program provides selected Air Force members the opportunity for resident training in scientific, engineering and other fields at civilian institutions industrial organizations.

The captain recently was elected to membership in the Eta Kappa Nu.

Captain Nash will be assigned to the Rome Air Development Center at Griffiss AFB, N. Y., as a member of the Air Force Logistics Command which has the mission of providing Air Force operational units with supplies, equipment and maintenance services.

He received his B.S. degree and was commissioned upon graduation from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1959.

His wife, Adeline, is the daughter of Mrs. J. Elmer Cates of 155 Harding Avenue, Kingston.

Didn't Judge Girls

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) —The Miss America Pageant, which began in 1921, had its origin in the Floral Parade held in 1902.

The Floral Parade was made up of rolling chairs decorated with flowers, with a girl in each chair. However, only the beauty of the decorated chairs, and not that of the girls, was judged.

No doubt many of the readers have read the article in the June, 1964 Reader's Digest, starting on page 121 titled How to Get Safer, Softer Water by D. X. Manners, and condensed from House Beautiful. Water problems and sewage are giving municipalities and towns and villages problems elsewhere as well as right here in our own community and no answer in sight. It is said detergents also are ruining our drinking water, as it works its way back into the ground.

One item reads: "Run a bottle of water from your tap. Shake it. If it doesn't foam... maybe your water is really the same sparkling liquid you like to think of as flowing in mountain streams. Many people are not so lucky. Their bottles will foam, sinister proof that the water they drink, has unsavory ancestry... the foam is caused by waste detergents that pass through sewers, etc." They hope soon "soft detergents" will be used, which decompose after use...

Years ago before the 1890's Kingston's 25,000 population used wells for drinking water and cistern for heavy duty, like washing. The wells even in outskirts have been replaced by town water, but septic tanks have taken the place of other conveniences. The author writes: "Some communities, where each half-acre plot has its own septic tank... it is not good practice to have both well and septic tank where lots are small." Each new modern home in the country today has its own septic tank and the trials and tribulations which go with it. Now he also explains the difficulty with hard water which clogs pipes with mineral-scale deposits or coats the inside of the water-heater tank. Soft water is kind to plumbing so it seems and better for washing purposes as less soap is needed.

Toward the end he writes that travelers from America found that in most foreign countries they could drink only bottled water, while in America one could drink straight from the faucet. Now it seems in some large American cities, drinking water is also furnished in a bottle, and prominent people who can afford it, drink only bottled water. I often thought that our drinking water is wasted in washing clothes, in bathrooms, in watering gardens. Someday, perhaps, drinking water will come from one faucet, and for all other purposes other water will be used. Cooking and drinking water came from wells long ago, and the cistern furnished other water, so the old-timers knew the value of using and saving good water for the proper purposes. Perhaps we ought to look into the common, horse-sense of the folks who started this country and made it nice and safe and convenient and secure for us.

Edmund T. Cloonan loaned me a number of items on the Kingston Water Department of which he is superintendent. One is a bill paid by A. Hayes, administrator of the estate of William M. Hayes, No. 1203 to the Kingston Water Co. for water rent at Wall Street from Sept. 1, 1893 to March 1, 1894. The bill was for $6 and they received payment on Oct. 13, 1893, by the Kingston Water Co. R. H. Herdman. Beautiful handwriting on this paid bill. Another bill, this one is green, other one yellow. This one also to William M. Hayes Estate at 328 Wall Street to Kingston Water Works Department, City of Kingston, water service for the third quarter of 1897, and received payment Sept. 18, 1897. It was for a drug store, which had two faucets at $2.50. One water closet at 75 cents. That was 70 years ago in Kingston.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Mono? A 'Rat Fink'?

Hal Miller belongs to that exotic international group — teenagers. In fact, he belongs to the segment of it that goes in for narrow black pants, orange socks, miscellaneous sweatshirts and Beatle-brow hair. And he affects a language known only to jazz musicians, "beat" poets, and fellow teenagers.

But there's nothing "beat" about Hal, really. He's lively, alert, leads a happy, active life — or did until last June, when the bug got him.

That morning in June Hal woke up — yellow. His throat was sore, the glands in his neck were swollen. He had chills, he had a high fever. He ached and felt tired. "Man, I'm like nowhere," said Hal. His mother called the doctor. Hal was examined, his blood was analyzed and the trouble diagnosed: infectious mononucleosis.

"I'm not getting the sound, man," Hal was puzzled. The long name was explained: Hal's blood showed an increase in certain kinds of white cells.

"A lot of teenagers and college types get Mono," the doctor said. "Its exact cause isn't known," he added, "but the prime suspect is a virus—a tiny organism that also causes colds and flu." Hal could have caught it by kissing his girl, or drinking at a public fountain. No drug is directly against it; recovery is slow, with plenty of rest, nourishing food and sleep the main prescription.

Two months later Hal is still in bed — bored, discouraged, depressed. "Crazy," he grumbles. "Like it's a rat fink!" This bored discouragement is indeed the main danger during the long recovery. To help overcome the "rat fink," Mono, your Christmas Seal association advises cheer and encouragement in addition to the doctor's treatment. In any language, Hal needs to know that he will get better. Sooner, if he takes it easy and saves his energy, until mononucleosis gets discouraged at last and lets him be.

Now here! The gasoline that won the West!

Out where hard, wide-open driving is a way of life, Phillips 66 gasoline is a mighty big favorite. And no wonder!

Phillips 66 gasoline cuts even the toughest super-highways down to size because it gives you power to spare. That means it gives you more gallop per gallon—more power than your car actually requires. And this protects your car against damaging engine strain when the driving conditions are really rough.

Yessir! You ride tall with Phillips 66...the gasoline that stands up to any on the road today. So pull in at one of the big, bright Phillips 66 stations opening in your area. You'll get the gasoline that won the West and our famous Western hospitality, too! Go first-class...go Phillips 66! (It costs no more.)

Ex-Poughkeepsie Teacher Booked In Queens on DWI

A 46-year-old former Poughkeepsie High School guidance teacher reportedly was in the Queens County jail last week, facing charges of jumping bail after he was booked on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Thomas North, of 36 Raymond Avenue, Arlington, is wanted in the Town of Poughkeepsie on charges of impersonating a police officer. North reportedly resigned from his duties as a guidance counselor at Poughkeepsie High School, following his arrest by police in the Town of Poughkeepsie.

North, according to Detective Lieut. Richard Hellman, also is wanted by town police on a charge of issuing a fraudulent check. Police said the alleged worthless check was used to secure a surety bond for his release pending trial on the charge of impersonating an officer.

The original complaint against North in the Town of Poughkeepsie was made by Miss Joan Barringer, Salt Point Turnpike, who told police the defendant stopped her Aug. 2 on the Dutchess Turnpike and told her he was a policeman. She also said North asked her for her driver's license, tore it in half, and then drove away.

North was later arrested and arraigned before Justice of the Peace George C. Dietz on the woman's complaint. The case was adjourned and bail was reduced from $500 to $100. North did not appear on the adjourned date and bail was revoked. A warrant was issued for his arrest.

Town Police Chief Vincent Smith said North was located in the Queens County Jail, where he is awaiting a charge accusing him of jumping bail after his arrest on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Four Are Injured In Two-Car Crash Near Napanoch

Four persons were injured at 6 p. m. Saturday, when the cars in which they were riding collided on Route 55 at Jenny Brook Road, Napanoch, according to Ellenville State Police.

Sergeant William Cameron said the cars were driven by Patrick Wright, 17, of Kerhonkson, and Henry Kuykendall, 59, of Napanoch. Wright sustained bruises of the arms, and Kuykendall received similar injuries.

Clara Brennan, 59, of Napanoch, a passenger in Kuykendall's car, suffered bruises of the forehead, and Berlin Wright, 80, of Kerhonkson, a passenger in the other vehicle received lacerations of the forehead.

Sergeant Cameron said the injured were treated at Veterans' Memorial Hospital.

Boy Is Arrested For Stealing Car

A 17-year-old youth was taken into custody Sunday by State Troopers Richard Dempsey and James Kelley of the Ellenville sub-station on a charge of petty larceny.

Sergeant William Cameron said Samuel J. Whittington, of Berne Road, Ellenville, was accused of taking a 1954 sedan owned by Harry Tann, Ulster Heights, who reported his car was taken from his yard.

Whittington pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Herbert Poppel, Town of Wawarsing, and was fined $50. Payment of the fine was suspended.

Questions Policy Of Congressman's Kingston Office

The Democratic candidate for Congress from New York's 28th District, Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville, today questioned the policies of Congressman J. Ernest Wharton, in relation to Wharton's District office operation in Kingston and the salary scale of the incumbent's executive secretary at his Washington, D. C. office.

Resnick, running for the Congressional seat now held by Wharton, spoke Sunday at Sharon Springs Democratic Club annual picnic held at Leesville, in Schoharie County.

In his address Resnick told the audience that although his opponent professes to operate a district office in Kingston, the office is in reality, located in the suite of rooms that houses Republican Headquarters. "I question the ethics and propriety of such an arrangement," Resnick said. He continued, "should a federally-paid employee run a Congressman's district office in the headquarters of his political party?"

Resnick disclosed at the Schoharie County function that Wharton employed Bernhardt Kramer as his district representative in the Kingston office at a federal salary of $8,122.80 in 1963.

Resnick also noted that although Kramer works out of the office at 37 John Street, the only telephone listed for the office suite belongs to Republican Headquarters.

Resnick also mentioned that Mrs. Helen Staples, executive secretary to Congressman Wharton, collected $14,409.36 last year in federal salary. Resnick stated that even in private industry it is practically unheard of for a secretary to make that kind of money. By way of comparison, he pointed out that the high school principal of Cobleskill only gets $11,000.00 a year and the supervising principal earns $13,500.00 a year. "Is it proper for a congressman's secretary to make more money than two of the leading educators in Mr. Wharton's home county?" Resnick asked.

Ulster Man Fair After Collision With Ambulance

Injured in an ambulance-car collision in Poughkeepsie last Wednesday, Francis J. Smith, 43, of Route 9W Trailer Haven, today was reported in fair condition at Vassar Hospital.

According to police the ambulance from the hospital was on its way to an emergency call at the John Van Benschoten Auto Agency, 165 Smith Street, when it was in collision with Smith's car at the intersection of Church and South Hamilton Streets.

Smith reportedly sustained bruises and lacerations. Three members of the ambulance crew also were injured in the collision. They were Frank Mund, 33, the operator, who sustained bruises; Dr. Edward Roman, 29, an intern, was treated for lacerations of the tongue and bruises, and an attendant, Floyd Lowe, 32, of 196 Main Street, Poughkeepsie, suffered lacerations.

Police Chief John L. Martin said the ambulance was enroute from the hospital to pick up Herman Hink, of 23 Lent Street, a salesman, who suffered a leg injury.

A second ambulance was dispatched from the hospital after the collision to remove the injured to the hospital and to pick up Hink, who suffered a fractured leg.

Local Man Faces Forgery Charges

A 47-year-old Kingston man, reportedly was in custody at Poughkeepsie today, facing charges of second degree forgery, and State Police say he is wanted by local authorities on similar charges.

James Ross, who troopers said has no permanent address, was accused of forging the name of John O. Shaw, Saugerties, to a $45 check and cashing it shortly after he registered at the Poughkeepsie Inn under Shaw's name.

Police said Ross also is accused of leaving the hotel without paying a $36.20 bill.

Kingston State Police said a detainer warrant has been filed with Poughkeepsie police, seeking custody of Ross for arraignment in the Town of Lloyd on a check charge.

Ross described as a former shipping clerk, is also known as Joseph Ross, James O'Neil, Thomas Sweeney and Robert Martin. He was arrested last Friday night by Acting Detective Sgt. Francis (Pete) Doerr.

It was reported that the Towns of Ulster and Shandaken and the City of Kingston authorities also have outstanding warrants against Ross.

Two Are Hospitalized For Beating Injuries

One of two men hospitalized here over the weekend said he was beaten by unknown persons and the other was treated for a head laceration after a reported "disturbance" on Newkirk Avenue.

A police report at 1:40 a. m. Sunday said Thomas Kelly, 24, of 91 Broadway, claimed he was "beaten up by unknown persons" at Mill and Ann Streets. He was taken to Kingston Hospital by Fatum ambulance for treatment of a cut lip.

Later Sunday police were notified that Carlos Figueroa, 23, of 53 Franklin Street, was treated at Kingston Hospital for "a cut on the head." He was taken there by Doctors' ambulance. The report followed one noting "a disturbance" on Newkirk Avenue.

Wharton Says ...

ignores the aged and the very young, who together constitute the largest group of needy citizens, and it is regrettable that a more meaningful and constructive measure could not have been devised to eliminate the blight of poverty.

Drivers Fined

Douglas Mellin, 22, of 119 Prospect Street, charged with speeding as a second offender, was fined $50 in city court today.

Michael Toffel, 20, of 71 Pine Grove Avenue, and Francis J. Guido, 18, of Box 286, Kingston, charged with traffic light violations, were fined $10 each.

Wayne J. Thomas, 22, of 121 Cedar Street, and Thomas H. Bargisen, 25, of 109 Dickman Street, Brookline, charged with driving uninsured vehicles, were fined $5 each.

Future Is Dim

he forced nomination of Manhattan Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan for the U.S. Senate over the opposition of Harriman and other party stalwarts as Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, both since deceased.

Hogan lost to Republican Kenneth B. Keating, who is seeking re-election this year against the prospective candidacies of U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, Democrat, and Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, a Republican who has offered to run as the Conservative Party candidate.

RFK Bid Foremost

With the opening of the convention only hours away, the prospective entry of Kennedy into the New York Senate race continued to hold attention.

Kennedy's withdrawal Sunday as a delegate from Massachusetts, his present voting residence, was taken as a sure signal here that he will seek the Democratic nomination despite "carpetbagger" charges by Republicans.

Kennedy has the backing of Wagner and other powerful Democratic leaders in New York and is regarded as an overwhelming choice for nomination at the Democratic State Convention Sept. 1.

Nevertheless, Rep. Otis Pike of Suffolk County said he fully intended to place the name of Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, of Amsterdam, into nomination for the Senate unless Stratton drops out before the state convention.

Rocky May ...

man, J. Daniel Mahoney, announced that Mrs. Luce would accept the party's U.S. Senate nomination if offered.

In the interval Rockefeller reported that Goldwater had promised at the GOP unity conference in Hershey, Pa., to try to talk the Conservatives out of opposing Keating.

After Mahoney's announcement, Goldwater said he had talked with Mrs. Luce last Thursday but had not discussed her political plans.

Wants to Talk

"I want to speak to her before I have any announcement," the Republican presidential nominee said.

But Mrs. Luce, a playwright and former ambassador to Italy said Goldwater had discussed the situation with her. Commenting on the Hinman - McHugh telegram, she said:

"The person to send such letters to is me. I'm not Senator Goldwater's problem. He has already told me how he feels. I will take my own stand on principle."

All for One

Mrs. Luce said Goldwater telephoned her on Thursday, told her "Republicans should back Republicans" and indicated he thought Keating eventually would support him.

She told a reporter Sunday she would withdraw if Keating would support Goldwater.

"But," she added, "I listened to Mr. Keating on the radio Sunday morning and he sounded very much as if he were supporting Mr. Johnson."

Luce May Hurt

Keating said in a recorded radio interview Sunday that he believed his chances for reelection would be hurt if a Conservative candidate ran against him.

In a separate comment on Mahoney's announcement, he said:

"It's a free country. She has every right to run." He added that "I expect she would get votes that otherwise would go to me."

Find Stolen Car In New Salem Field, Damaged

At 4:20 o'clock Sunday morning Robert Robinson of Quarry Street, Port Ewen, reported to the sheriff's office that his car had been taken from in front of Van Leuven Tavern in Port Ewen. The car had been left there at about 1:30 a. m.

At 5:45 a. m. while on the sheriff's night patrols in the vicinity of New Salem, Deputy Sheriff Bernard Ellsworth reported a car in the field. On investigating it was found the car had been traveling in the direction of Port Ewen from New Salem when it ran off the right of the road. The operator failed to negotiate a turn, hit a pole, glanced off two other poles, went across the highway and struck a post. The car then spun around and headed back toward New Salem and came to rest in the field after traveling some 600 feet after leaving the road.

The back and right side of the car was badly damaged and there was some damage reported to the front of the car.

The matter is still under investigation.

Ruppert May Give Up at Carmel About Plant Site

Jack Waldron, president of the Ruppert Brewing Co., says that if a water problem at Carmel cannot be resolved in a reasonable amount of time, the company will look elsewhere for a site to erect a $25,000,000 plant.

Waldron said that the Town of Carmel is "working vigorously" in an effort to end the stalemate with New York City over the water dispute, so that the plant, slated to hire 750 persons can be built east of Carmel.

The company president noted that water experts have been consulted in an effort to solve the problem.

New York City Water Commissioner Armand D'Angelo declared he would fight in the courts every attempt to enforce a law requiring the city to deliver up to two million gallons of water a day to Carmel for use of the brewing plant.

For some time it was understood Ruppert's had considered locating in Kingston or in a suburb of this city.

Two Are Injured As Car Hits Tree

Two persons were injured when a car hit a tree on East Chester near Garrison Street early today.

Gerald Woodvine, 20, of 14 Lawrenceville Street, Town of Ulster, driver of the car, told police his vision was affected when the driver of an oncoming car failed to dim its lights, and he skidded into a tree when he applied the brakes.

Woodvine was treated at Kingston Hospital for chest and arm injuries, and Karen Fisher, 18, of 103 Hasbrouck Avenue, was treated for a chest injury. They were taken there by Fatum ambulance.

The mishap, reported at 1:13 a. m., was investigated by officers Oscar Gray and Joseph Kivlan.

Growth, Current Income Are Poles-Apart Targets

Q—"I've managed to save $2,100, of which I've invested part in Campbell Soup. What is a growth stock and what is an income stock? Do you think that Sears, Roebuck or Safeway may split soon?" G. M.

A—Let me congratulate you on picking a fine stock as an initial purchase.

A growth issue is one that shows a consistent pattern of rising earnings and dividends over a period of years, in a trend that seems likely to continue. Growth stocks usually give low yields and are purchased for capital enhancement.

Income stocks are bought for current return only and usually have far less appreciation potential than growth issues.

I don't know whether Sears or Safeway will split soon, but they are selling in a range where each issue split 3-for-1 several years ago. I would never buy a stock solely on split prospects but believe that both shares you mentioned are good buys on their growth prospects alone.

Q—"We would like you to comment on the Irving Trust Company for us. We have a substantial stock holding in the bank but are a little concerned about the price going lower and the fact that operating earnings were lower in the first half of 1964. Should we continue to hold?" L. S.

A—I believe the answer to your question depends largely on your objective.

If you wish a highly secure investment yielding 3 1/2 per cent on its cash dividend plus two per cent in stock annually — with rather conservative appreciation prospects — I would certainly hold Irving's earnings reached a peak in 1961 and have since been around a $3 annual rate, largely restrained by interest paid on time deposits.

If you wish to aim for faster capital enhancement than most bank stocks offer, I would switch part of my shares into Merck & Company — one of the best pharmaceuticals — and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Youth Is Charged With Burglary of Cherry Hill Hotel

Charged with burglarizing a room at the Cherry Hill Hotel, Greenfield Park, on Saturday, Eugene Hladun, 17, of New York City, was arrested by Ellenville State Police BCI investigators on a third degree burglary charge.

Sergeant William Cameron of Ellenville State Police, said Hladun was seen as he ran from a room occupied at the hotel by Larry Rosenberg of the hotel's band. The youth was accused of taking clothing and an assortment of personal articles.

Sergeant Cameron reported the youth has admitted the theft of several automobiles stolen from the New York City area, which were found abandoned in the Ellenville area.

Hladun was arraigned on the burglary charge before Justice of the Peace Herbert Poppel, Town of Wawarsing. He waived preliminary hearing and was ordered held for action of the grand jury.

Ex-Poughkeepsie Teacher Booked In Queens on DWI

A 46-year-old former Poughkeepsie High School guidance teacher reportedly was in the Queens County jail last week, facing charges of jumping bail after he was booked on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Thomas North, of 36 Raymond Avenue, Arlington, is wanted in the Town of Poughkeepsie on charges of impersonating a police officer. North reportedly resigned from his duties as a guidance counselor at Poughkeepsie High School, following his arrest by police in the Town of Poughkeepsie.

North, according to Detective Lieut. Richard Hellman, also is wanted by town police on a charge of issuing a fraudulent check. Police said the alleged worthless check was used to secure a surety bond for his release pending trial on the charge of impersonating an officer.

The original complaint against North in the Town of Poughkeepsie was made by Miss Joan Barranger, Salt Point Turnpike, who told police the defendant stopped her Aug. 2 on the Dutchess Turnpike and told her he was a policeman. She also said North asked her for her driver's license, tore it in half, and then drove away.

North was later arrested and arraigned before Justice of the Peace George C. Dietz on the woman's complaint. The case was adjourned and bail was reduced from $500 to $100. North didn't appear on the adjourned date and bail was revoked. A warrant was issued for his arrest.

Town Police Chief Vincent Smith said North was located in the Queens County Jail, where he is awaiting a charge accusing him of jumping bail after his arrest on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Four Are Injured In Two-Car Crash Near Napanoch

Four persons were injured at 6 p. m. Saturday, when the cars in which they were riding collided on Route 55 at Jenny Brook Road, Napanoch, according to Ellenville State Police.

Sergeant William Cameron said the cars were driven by Patrick Wright, 17, of Kerhonkson, and Henry Kuykendall, 59, of Napanoch. Wright sustained bruises of the arms, and Kuykendall received similar injuries.

Clara Brennan, 59, of Napanoch, a passenger in Kuykendall's car, suffered bruises of the forehead, and Berlin Wright, 80, of Kerhonkson, a passenger in the other vehicle received lacerations of the forehead.

Sergeant Cameron said the injured were treated at Veterans' Memorial Hospital.

Boy Is Arrested For Stealing Car

A 17-year-old youth was taken into custody Sunday by State Troopers Richard Dempsey and James Kelley of the Ellenville sub-station on a charge of petty larceny.

Sergeant William Cameron said Samuel Whittington, of Berne Road, Ellenville, was accused of taking a 1954 sedan owned by Harry Tann, Ulster Heights, who reported his car was taken from his yard.

Whittington pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Herbert Poppel, Town of Wawarsing, and was fined $50. Payment of the fine was suspended.

Questions Policy Of Congressman's Kingston Office

The Democratic candidate for Congress from New York's 28th District, Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville, today questioned the policies of Congressman J. Ernest Wharton, in relation to Wharton's District office operation in Kingston and the salary scale of the incumbent's executive secretary at his Washington, D. C. office.

Resnick, running for the Congressional seat now held by Wharton spoke Sunday at Sharon Springs Democratic Club annual picnic held at Leesville, in Schoharie County.

In his address Resnick told the audience that although his opponent professes to operate a district office in Kingston, the office is in reality, located in the suite of rooms that houses Republican Headquarters. "I question the ethics and propriety of such an arrangement," Resnick said. He continued, "should a federally-paid employee run a Congressman's district office in the headquarters of his political party?"

Resnick disclosed at the Schoharie County function that Wharton employed Bernhard Kramer as his district representative in the Kingston office at a federal salary of $6,122.80 in 1963.

Resnick also noted that although Kramer works out of the office at 37 John Street, the only telephone listed for the office suite belongs to Republican Headquarters.

Resnick also mentioned that Mrs. Helen Staples, executive secretary to Congressman Wharton, collected $14,409.36 last year in federal salary. Resnick stated that even in private industry it is practically unheard of for a secretary to make that kind of money. By way of comparison, he pointed out that the high school principal of Cobleskill only gets $11,000.00 a year and the supervising principal earns $13,500.00 a year. "Is it proper for a congressman's secretary to make more money than two of the leading educators in Mr. Wharton's home county?" Resnick asked.

Ulster Man Fair After Collision With Ambulance

Injured in an ambulance-car collision in Poughkeepsie last Wednesday, Francis J. Smith, 43, of Route 9W Trailer Haven, today was reported in fair condition at Vassar Hospital.

According to police the ambulance from the hospital was on its way to an emergency call at the John Van Benschoten Auto Agency, 165 Smith Street, when it was in collision with Smith's car at the intersection of Church and South Hamilton Streets.

Smith reportedly sustained bruises and lacerations.

Three members of the ambulance crew also were injured in the collision. They were Frank Mund, 33, the operator, who sustained bruises; Dr. Edward Roman, 29, an intern, was treated for lacerations of the tongue and bruises, and an attendant, Floyd Lowe, 32, of 196 Main Street, Poughkeepsie, suffered lacerations.

Police Chief John L. Martin said the ambulance was enroute from the hospital to pick up Herman Hink, of 25 Lent Street, a salesman, who suffered a leg injury.

A second ambulance was dispatched from the hospital after the collision to remove the injured to the hospital and to pick up Hink, who suffered a fractured leg.

Local Man Faces Forgery Charges

A 47-year-old Kingston man, reportedly was in custody at Poughkeepsie today, facing charges of second degree forgery, and State Police say he is wanted by local authorities on similar charges.

James Ross, who troopers said has no permanent address, was accused of forging the name of John O. Shaw, Saugerties, to a $45 check and cashing it shortly after he registered at the Poughkeepsie Inn under Shaw's name.

Police said Ross also is accused of leaving the hotel without paying a $36.20 bill.

Kingston State Police said a detainer warrant has been filed with Poughkeepsie police, seeking custody of Ross for arraignment in the Town of Lloyd on a check charge.

Ross described as a former shipping clerk, is also known as Joseph Ross, James O'Neill, Thomas Sweeney and Robert Martin. He was arrested last Friday night by Acting Detective Sgt. Francis (Pete) Doerr.

It was reported that the Towns of Ulster and Shandaken and the City of Kingston authorities also have outstanding warrants against Ross.

Two Are Hospitalized For Beating Injuries

One of two men hospitalized here over the weekend said he was beaten by unknown persons and the other was treated for a head laceration after a reported "disturbance" on Newkirk Avenue.

A police report at 1:40 a. m. Sunday said Thomas Kelly, 24, of 91 Broadway, claimed he was "beaten up by unknown persons" at Mill and Ann Streets.

He was taken to Kingston Hospital by Fatum ambulance for treatment of a cut lip.

Later Sunday police were notified that Carlos Figueroa, 23, of 53 Franklin Street, was treated at Kingston Hospital for "a cut on the head." He was taken there by Doctors' ambulance. The report followed one noting "a disturbance" on Newkirk Avenue.

Future Is Dim

he forced nomination of Manhattan Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan for the U.S. Senate over the opposition of Hartman and such party stalwarts as Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, both since deceased.

Hogan lost to Republican Kenneth B. Keating, who is seeking re-election this year against the prospective candidacies of U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, Democrat, and Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, a Republican who has offered to run as the Conservative Party candidate.

RFK Bid Foremost

With the opening of the convention only hours away, the prospective entry of Kennedy into the New York Senate race continued to hold attention.

Kennedy's withdrawal Sunday as a delegate from Massachusetts, his present voting residence, was taken as a sure signal here that he will seek the Democratic nomination despite "carpetbagger" charges by Republicans.

Kennedy has the backing of Wagner and other powerful Democratic leaders in New York and is regarded as an overwhelming choice for nomination at the Democratic State Convention Sept. 1.

Nevertheless, Rep. Otis Pike of Suffolk County said he fully intended to place the name of Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, of Amsterdam, into nomination for the Senate unless Stratton drops out before the state convention.

Rocky May ...

man, J. Daniel Mahoney, announced that Mrs. Luce would accept the party's U.S. Senate nomination if offered.

In the interval Rockefeller reported that Goldwater has promised at the GOP unity conference in Hershey, Pa., to try to talk the Conservatives out of opposing Keating.

After Mahoney's announcement, Goldwater said he had talked with Mrs. Luce last Thursday but had not discussed her political plans.

Wants to Talk

"I want to speak to her before I have any announcement," the Republican presidential nominee said.

But Mrs. Luce, a playwright and former ambassador to Italy said Goldwater had discussed the situation with her. Commenting on the Hinman-McHugh telegram, she said:

"The person to send such letters to is me. I'm not Senator Goldwater's problem. He has already told me how he feels. I will take my own stand on principle."

All for One

Mrs. Luce said Goldwater telephoned her on Thursday, told her "Republicans should back Republicans" and indicated he thought Keating eventually would support him.

She told a reporter Sunday she would withdraw if Keating would support Goldwater.

"But," she added, "I listened to Mr. Keating on the radio Sunday morning and he sounded very much as if he were supporting Mr. Johnson."

Luce May Hurt

Keating said in a recorded radio interview Sunday that he believed his chances for re-election would be hurt if a Conservative candidate ran against him.

In a separate comment on Mahoney's announcement, he said:

"It's a free country. She has every right to run."

He added that "I expect she would get votes that otherwise would go to me."

Find No Violations Of Motor Boat Law

Ulster County motor boat owners are apparently complying with the law regarding registration of boats as outlined by the Conservation Law. In the state some 25,000 owners are reported to have not complied with the law.

Saturday and Sunday Sheriff Claude Bell, at the request of the Conservation Department, sent out a motor boat patrol to check the river and creek. Over 40 boats were halted and inspected without finding a violation.

The back and right side of the car was badly damaged and there was some damage reported to the front of the car.

The matter is still under investigation.

Ruppert May Give Up at Carmel About Plant Site

Jack Waldron, president of the Ruppert Brewing Co., says that if a water problem at Carmel cannot be resolved in a reasonable amount of time, the company will look elsewhere for a site to erect a $25,000,000 plant.

Waldron said that the Town of Carmel is "working vigorously" in an effort to end the stalemate with New York City over the water dispute, so that the plant, slated to hire 750 persons can be built east of Carmel.

The company president noted that water experts have been consulted in an effort to solve the problem.

New York City Water Commissioner Armand D'Angelo declared he would fight in the courts every attempt to enforce a law requiring the city to deliver up to two million gallons of water a day to Carmel for use of the brewing plant.

For some time it was understood Ruppert's had considered locating in Kingston or in a suburb of this city.

Two Are Injured As Car Hits Tree

Two persons were injured when a car hit a tree on East Chester near Garrison Street early today.

Gerald Woodvine, 20, of 14 Lawrenceville Street, Town of Ulster, driver of the car, told police his vision was affected when the driver of an oncoming car failed to dim his lights, and he skidded into a tree when he applied the brakes.

Woodvine was treated at Kingston Hospital for chest and arm injuries, and Karen Fisher, 18, of 103 Hasbrouck Avenue, was treated for a chest injury. They were taken there by Fatum ambulance.

The mishap, reported at 1:13 a. m., was investigated by officers Oscar Gray and Joseph Kivian.

Sale of Articles Made by Patients Featured at Fair

A wide range of handmade gifts and wares made by patients in the occupational therapy departments at the Ulster County TB Hospital and the Kingston Infirmary were exhibited and sold at the Ulster County Fair Wednesday and Thursday at the Patient Services — Hospital booth.

Patients are admitted to the department's therapy program on recommendation of Dr. L. D. Arany, Medical Director of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, and of Mrs. Dorothy Gunzelmann and nursing staff at the Kingston Infirmary. Charles Tarsia, director of the Occupational Therapy departments at both institutions, along with the capable volunteer therapy aides, prepared the fair display.

Therapy Aides at the Infirmary include Mrs. Dora Mollenhauer, Mrs. Herman DuBois, Mrs. William Hornbeck, Mrs. William Lahl, Miss Barbara Maines, Mrs. Anna Marks and Mrs. John Wolfersteig. Display preparations also were aided by Raphael Klein, director of Adult Education, Kingston Consolidated Schools; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Frantoni and Mrs. Charles Tarsia. The Patient Services — Hospital fair display was sponsored in past years by the Patient Services Committee of the Ulster County TB and Health Association, under the aid and chairmanship of Mrs. Clifford Donohue and Mrs. Mollenhauer.

Mrs. Donohue of the Association's TB Hospital Patient Services Committee directed the staffing of the patients' crafts display for Wednesday. These attendants, composed largely of Patient Services Committee members, included Mrs. Jacob Francis, Mrs. Alex Gerlak, Mrs. William Stopher, Mrs. Mason Millens, Mrs. Arnold Rymkevitch, Mrs. Richard Kalish, Mrs. Joseph Matey, Mrs. Florence Powell, Miss Mary Terwilliger, Miss Grace Terwilliger, Miss Kay Bower, and Mrs. Donohue.

Thursday's staff of attendants included Mrs. Mollenhauer, Mrs. DuBois and Mrs. Hornbeck of the therapy aides; Miss Lucy Baker, L.P.N. of the Infirmary nursing staff; Mrs. Helen King, Mrs. Shirley Kobran and Mrs. Pat Hepner.

The displayed handicrafts were offered for sale. The sale funds go to the patient who made the item or partially also to replenish the department's supply of crafts materials for the patients. Tarsia and his aides encourage the patients to develop latent talents and to work effectively and creatively with their hand. In addition to the value of this as a year-round therapeutic program, the patient has the important psychological lift of recognition and productivity when his handiwork is desired and purchased at the attractive, artistic patient services handicraft display at the Annual Ulster County Fair.

Information concerning the hospital and infirmary therapy programs was provided at the Fair patient display or may be had through calling the Ulster County TB and Health Association, 124 Green Street, Kingston.

ton. Wedding anniversaries Aug. 28 included that of Harold and Kathleen Phillips Buley, natives of this area who now make their home at Grahamsville. The couple who formerly resided along the Tonche Mountain Road, have ten children.

Bogart, whose father was Henry Bogart, Coons District farmer and flier in the famed Sheepskin Band, spent several years on the present Denis T. Lynch place along the mountainside (site of the big Y.M.C.A. Day Camps here). He left Shokan in 1898. None of his former neighbors remain on the mountain and all of the old farmhouses up there have changed ownership.

Callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Sherman Lennox recently included Mr. and Mrs. Irving Baker, Springfield, Mass.; Rose Matthews, Kingston, and Fannie Hallock of Patchogue. Local Legion's Barbecue Slated On September 20

Commander Albert O. Sonnenberg of Kingston Post 150, American Legion, announced today that J. Richard Schabot, Post 150 vice commander, has been named general chairman of the annual 1964 fall barbecue scheduled for September 20 on the post grounds at West O'Reilly Street.

A steak barbecue will be served. Commander Sonnenberg stated that this function is one of the local Legion's two leading promotions undertaken each year to help underwrite the active child welfare program and other public service ventures they sponsor. He, therefore, urges the public to support this cause by purchasing tickets from Legion members. Reservations must be made in advance.

as tickets will not be available at the time of the barbecue.

As an additional feature to this year's barbecue the committee will engage the Catskill Mountaineers, a musical quartet who will delight the guests with folk and square dance music.

Serving will take place from 2 to 5 p. m. Since a large tent will be erected for the barbecue, there will be no postponements because of weather conditions.

It has been estimated that the world population will double and consumption of water will triple by the end of the century.

Sale of Articles Made by Patients Featured at Fair

A wide range of handmade gifts and wares made by patients in the occupational therapy departments at the Ulster County TB Hospital and the Kingston Infirmary were exhibited and sold at the Ulster County Fair Wednesday and Thursday at the Patient Services — Hospital booth.

Patients are admitted to the department's therapy program on recommendation of Dr. L. D. Arany, Medical Director of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, and of Mrs. Dorothy Gunzmann and nursing staff at the Kingston Infirmary. Charles Tarsia, director of the Occupational Therapy departments at both institutions, along with the capable volunteer therapy aides, prepared the fair display.

Therapy Aides at the Infirmary include Mrs. Dora Mollenhauer, Mrs. Herman DuBois, Mrs. William Hornbeck, Mrs. William Lahl, Miss Barbara Maines, Mrs. Anna Marks and Mrs. John Wolfenstein. Display preparations also were aided by Raphael Klein, director of Adult Education, Kingston Consolidated Schools; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Frantoni and Mrs. Charles Tarsia. The Patient Services — Hospital fair display was sponsored, as in past years, by the Patient Services Committee of the Ulster County TB and Health Association, under the aid and chairmanship of Mrs. Clifford Donohue and Mrs. Mollenhauer.

Mrs. Donohue of the Association's TB Hospital Patient Services Committee directed the staffing of the patients' crafts display for Wednesday. These attendants, composed largely of Patient Services Committee members, included Mrs. Jacob Francis, Mrs. Alex Gerlak, Mrs. William Stopher, Mrs. Mason Millens, Mrs. Arnold Rymkevitch, Mrs. Richard Kalish, Mrs. Joseph Matey, Mrs. Florence Powell, Miss Mary Terwilliger, Miss Grace Terwilliger, Miss Kay Bower, and Mrs. Donohue.

Thursday's staff of attendants included Mrs. Mollenhauer, Mrs. DuBois and Mrs. Hornbeck of the therapy aides; Miss Lucy Baker, L.P.N. of the Infirmary nursing staff; Mrs. Helen King, Mrs. Shirley Kobran and Mrs. Pat Hepper.

The displayed handicrafts were offered for sale. The sale funds go to the patient who made the item or partially also to replenish the department's supply of craft materials for the patients. Tarsia and his aides encourage the patients to develop latent talents and to work effectively and creatively with their hand. In addition to the value of this as a year-round therapeutic program, the patient has the important psychological lift of recognition and productivity when his handiwork is desired and purchased at the attractive, artistic patient services handicraft display at the Annual Ulster County Fair. Information concerning the hospital and infirmary therapy programs was provided at the Fair patient display or may be had through calling the Ulster County TB and Health Association, 124 Green Street, Kingston.

A man's mistake is to believe that he's working only for some one else.

On a farm near Norwich, Conn., one of the cows has an extra leg, complete with hoof, hanging down on its side.—Olive H. Berg, Norwich, Conn.

She was a chorus girl and she complained to her chorus girl friend: Chorus Girl—Why ain't I never invited to parties in swell places like you are, Daisy? I get invited once and they never ask me again.

Friend—I'll tell you why you are never invited the second time. You can't discuss any subject with people when you are at a party. Why don't you read a book? Then, you'll be an interesting conversationalist!

The lectured one decided to read a book. A few days later she was invited to a dinner party. She listened to the talk for a while and then cut in with: Chorus Girl—Wasn't that too bad about Marie Antoinette?

The Party Platforms:

Conservative and Liberal Gap More Absolute in 1964

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)

The most obvious thing wrong with the Democratic and Republican platforms is that they're too long. Relatively few voters are likely to take the time and trouble to wade through them.

Still fewer would go through the ordeal of comparing them point by point, even if they could, to check their accuracy, exaggerations and philosophy.

Such a comparison, just to start, would require saving a copy of the Republican platform, released almost six weeks ago, to lay beside the Democratic document now being made public in pieces here where the convention opens today.

The Democrats, by producing their platform weeks after the Republicans' appeared have a tidy advantage: they have been able in many instances to try to answer the Republicans' complaints point by point.

Platforms are essential for laying out the positions and promises of both parties. And they're useful to the politicians as talking points. But there's no excuse for their unreadable length.

Follow Typical Pattern

But in this campaign, already showing signs of being heavily weighted with personal attacks, the reasoning and statistics of the platforms are apt to be blurred over for those reading and comparing them.

As usual, this year's two documents follow the typical platform pattern. That of the in-party, the Democrats, glows with optimism about its handling of problems and points with pride to what it considers fine achievements.

The out-Republicans, wanting in, grumble gloom and criticism about the past and future under Democrats and rant for a chance to do it better.

In this sense both platforms are corny.

Deeper Difference

But there is a deeper difference which in this particular year should get voters' careful attention, although they will form their opinions more from listening to the politicians than from reading them in the platforms.

This deeper difference is between the views of the Democrats and Republicans toward government's role in the American society. As is now well known, the far more conservative Republicans under Sen. Barry Goldwater want far less of it.

The gap between the conservative and liberal views of the two parties is more absolute in this campaign than in any in this century, thanks to the particular philosophy of Goldwater and his followers.

Where many previous elections were far more a personality contest than a struggle between party views of government and toward individuals, this one for the first time in generations should truly hinge upon ideas.

Way to Compare

The tone of the two platforms can be illustrated by using side by side section headings from both of them. In what follows the Republican view is given first, the Democratic next.

Republicans: "Inability to Create Jobs." Democrats: "Full Employment." Republicans: "Fiscal Irresponsibility." Democrats: "Fiscal Responsibility." Republicans: "Retarding Enterprises." Democrats: "Economic Growth."

Republicans: "Neglect of Natural Resources." The Democrats, under the heading of "Natural Resources," devote 5½ pages to show how much they feel they have done in this field.

Republicans: "Weakness Before Communism." The Democrats, under the heading of "The Communist World," argue for six pages on how "the record of world events in the past year reflects the vigor and success of U.S. policy."

Republicans: "Undermining the United Nations." Under "United Nations," the Democrats protest over two pages that they've strengthened the United Nations.

Deaths

NEW YORK (AP)—Benjamin J. Davis, 60, national secretary of the Communist party of the United States, died Saturday after a long illness. He served more than 3½ years in prison after being sentenced to five years and a $10,000 fine in 1949 after conviction of advocating the forcible overthrow of the government.

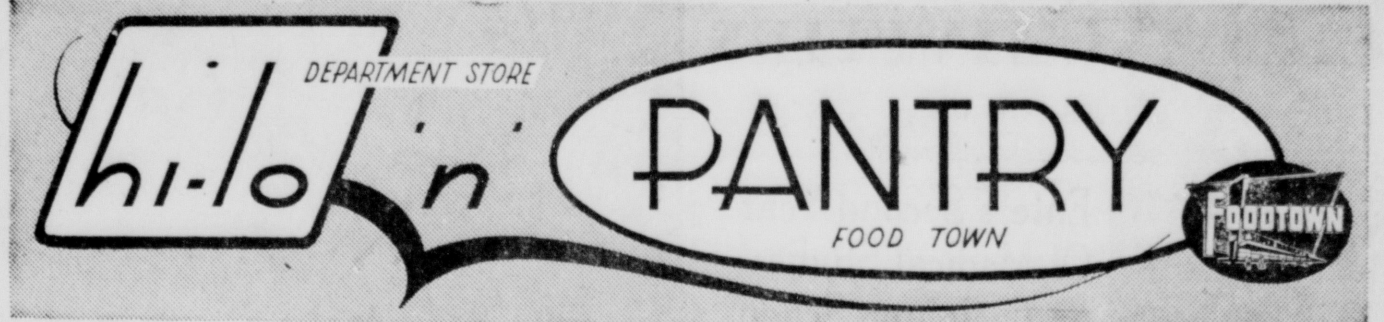

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Louis Pollock, 60, movie writer credited with "The Jackie Robinson Story" and a version of "The Lady and the Tramp," died Sunday in his home. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Charles Stevens, 71, veteran actor known by face to millions and by name to few, died Saturday. Known to Hollywood as "Indian Joe," Stevens was a grandson of the famed Apache chief Geronimo. Stevens had been in pictures since 1914.

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP)—Charles Stephenson Smith, 89, chief of The Associated Press foreign service in the 1920s, died Friday. In a long career with the AP, Smith had been assigned to many major cities of the world, including London, Moscow, Peking and Berlin.

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP)—J. Curtis Lyons, 66, former executive editor of the Petersburg Progress-Index, died Sunday. He had been ill two months.

YORK, S.C. (AP)—Caroline Coleman, 42, television personality and Broadway understudy actress, died Friday of a gun-shot wound which the York County coroner termed self-inflicted.

Such a comparison, just to start, would require saving a copy of the Republican platform, released almost six weeks ago, to lay beside the Democratic document now being made public in pieces where the convention opens today.

The Democrats, by producing their platform weeks after the Republicans' appeared have a tidy advantage: they have been able in many instances to try to answer the Republicans' complaints point by point.

Platforms are essential for laying out the positions and promises of both parties. And they're useful to the politicians as talking points. But there's no excuse for their unreadable length.

Follow Typical Pattern

But in this campaign, already showing signs of being heavily weighted with personal attacks, the reasoning and statistics of the platforms are apt to be blurred even for those reading and comparing them.

As usual, this year's two documents follow the typical platform pattern. That of the Republicans, glowing with optimism about its handling of problems and points with pride to what it considers fine achievements.

The out-Republicans, wanting in, grumble gloom and criticism about the past and future under Democrats and pant for a chance to do better.

In this sense both platforms are corny.

Deeper Difference

But there is a deeper difference which in this particular year should get voters' careful attention, although they will form their opinions more from listening to the politicians than from reading them in the platforms.

This deeper difference is between the views of the Democrats and Republicans toward government's role in the American society. As is now well known, the far more conservative Republicans under Sen. Barry Goldwater want far less of it.

The gap between the conservative and liberal views of the two parties is more absolute in this campaign than in any in this century, thanks to the particular philosophy of Goldwater and his followers.

Where many previous elections were far more a personality contest than a struggle between party views of government and toward individuals,

this one for the first time in generations should truly hinge upon ideas.

The tone of the two platforms can be illustrated by using side by side section headings from both of them. In what follows the Republican view is given first, the Democratic next:

Republicans: "Inability to Create Jobs." Democrats: "Full Employment." Republicans: "Fiscal Irresponsibility." Democrats: "Fiscal Responsibility." Republicans: "Retarding Enterprises." Democrats: "Economic Growth."

Republicans: "Neglect of Natural Resources." The Democrats, under the heading of "Natural Resources," devote 5½ pages to show how much they feel they have done in this field.

Republicans: "Weakness Before Communism." The Democrats, under the heading of "The Communist World," argue for six pages on how "the record of world events in the past year reflects the vigor and success of U.S. policy."

Republicans: "Undermining the United Nations." Under "United Nations" the Democrats protest over two pages that they've strengthened the United Nations.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN C. CIVILL

Local Man Is Wed to Fillmore Girl In Double Ring Ceremony August 15

Miss Linda Lee Talbott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor H. Talbott of Fillmore, N. Y., exchanged marriage vows Aug. 15 with John Clark Civill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Civill, Stone Ridge.

The Rev. Clark E. Gilmour of the Fillmore Methodist Church officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of silk linen, high lighted by a bodice of Venice lace, bell skirt and detachable train. A pill box of lace and seed pearls secured the bouffant illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of feathered carnations, stephanotis and ivy.

Mrs. William Scott of Rochester, N. Y., sister of the bride was matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Miss Marlene Gillis of Buchanan, N. Y. and Miss Lynn Korth of Niagara Falls.

They wore identical floor length gowns styled with empire waist. Bodices were of dark green velvet and skirts of pale green crepe. Matching face veils fell from satin bows. They carried cascade bouquets of yellow daisies.

The Misses Lee Ann and Sherill Lynn Scott of Rochester, nieces of the bride were flower girls. They were dressed in dark green velvet floor-length gowns, styled similar to the other attendants. They carried baskets of yellow rose buds.

George Stoughton of Berkshire was best man. David Campbell, Fillmore and Claude Frank, Flushing, N. Y. were ushers. A reception was held at the Genesee Falls Hotel after the ceremony. After a wedding trip to Cape Cod, Mass the couple will reside in Albany, N. Y.

The bride is a graduate of Fillmore Central High School and is currently a senior at the New York State University, College of Albany. The bridegroom is a Kingston High School alumnus and graduated from New York State University, College of Albany. He is employed as a mathematics teacher at Cox-sackie-Athens Central School.

Guest Appropriates Flower From Centerpiece

Q: My husband and I attended a large wedding reception. Each table had a centerpiece of pink and white carnations. A friend of ours who was seated at the same table with us, took one of the carnations from the centerpiece and put it in his button-hole. What is your opinion of this?

A: Your friend very definitely showed bad manners by taking one of the flowers from the centerpiece which was put on the table for decoration purposes and not to be used for boutonnières. If all the other men at table had followed his example, there would be nothing left of the centerpiece.

A Gift of Soap

Q: My girl friend is planning to give a friend of hers a box of toilet soap for a birthday present. The soap is attractively packaged and has a delightful scent, but even so, I think such a present in bad taste and in fact, insulting.

A: Because the giving of soap could easily be taken as a hint that the recipient should use more of it, you are right in thinking that such a gift would be in questionable taste.

Setting Another Date

Q: When I call a friend and invite her to dinner and she cannot come on that particular evening, is it necessary to set another date at that time for her to come?

A: It is not necessary to set another date immediately. In fact, it is best not to because should she not be able to accept for the second evening, she might find it embarrassing to have to refuse again.

Red Tape Hampers School Progress, Professor Claims

The growing bureaucracy in American educational organization tends to block the removal of obsolete practices, Gale Jensen, University of Michigan professor of education, claims.

"The prevalent forms of educational bureaucracy offer little hope for removing obsolescence and increasing productivity," Jensen says.

"Rather, with increasing size, the security problems of internal control and external adjustment become greater," he says.

"This results in more resources of the organization having to be allocated to the creation and maintenance of new roles primarily concerned with governmental and security matters; for example, personnel officers, assistant and associate superintendents and deans, vice-presidents, business managers, assistant principals, legal specialists, etc.

"Under this kind of bureaucratic organization, the more competent teachers become and the more desirous they are to remove obsolescence in educational organization, the more frustrated they will become."

Jensen says teachers have several alternatives. They can quit, as many do each year. They can become administrators and devote their time to security and administrative matters. Or they can "join the union and become involved in a tug-of-war over salaries, job security and working conditions."

To keep educational organization from becoming too rigid, Jensen suggests that increase in size of the organizational units can be checked. He says the large educational systems such as Chicago, New York, Detroit, Philadelphia, and Los Angeles, could be arbitrarily broken into smaller operating units with no danger of any loss of productivity.

Operation Crime Stop

CHICAGO (AP) — This city may be noted for its crime, but its citizens are involved in the Chicago Police Department's Operation Crime-Stop.

Launched this spring, the operation invites telephone calls from Chicagoans who may identify themselves or remain anonymous.

Since its inception April 13, 357 citizen telephone calls have been made to Police 5-1313. The effort resulted in 530 arrests.

PHILHARMONIC CAMPAIGN—Discussing plans for the 1964 membership campaign of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society are Mrs. Helen Newcombe, Kingston team captain, Dr. Richard J. Messina, vice president and chairman of the drive, and Stephen E. Huben Jr., president. Chairman, Captains Named for This Year's Hudson Valley Philharmonic Member Drive

Dr. Richard J. Messina of Saugerties has been appointed general chairman of the 1964 membership campaign for the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society.

The appointment was announced today by Stephen E. Huben Jr., president of the Ulster County Chapter of HVPS.

In announcing the appointment of Dr. Messina, Mr. Huben said, "Our special goal for the 1964 campaign is to bring the philharmonic music of our orchestra to as many new people as possible. In addition to contacting those who are members of this organization now, we hope to encourage participation by local residents who have not had an opportunity to take part in our past programs."

"Dr. Messina has set Sept. 6-19 as 'Philharmonic Subscription Weeks'. In addition to contacting residents of the Kingston area where most of our present members reside, his committee will extend the 1964 campaign into the Catskill-Hudson area, and the New Paltz and Ellenville areas," he added.

Working with Dr. Messina are the following team captains: Mrs. C. Lincoln Christensen, Hurley; Arling Kalleberg, West Hurley; Mrs. Fred Brammer, Red Hook; Mrs. Beverly Finn, Hudson; Freeman Stay, Quarryville; Miss Barbara Olsen, Ulster Landing; John Scibano, Accord; Norman Rafalowsky, Kingston; Miss Katherine Huben, Rosendale; Mrs. Helen Newcombe, Kingston; Mrs. Barbara Ronder, Hurley; and Mrs. Jane Tomneson, Mount Marion.

Tickets will be mailed to all members during the week prior to the first concert, Oct. 5.

Named Training Chairman of '65 Chest Campaign

The training chairman for the 1965 Ulster County Community Chest campaign is Achilles Colodi, general campaign chairman Joseph J. Benjamin, has announced.

The training chairman is responsible for providing training and education sessions for all of the campaign leadership and workers.

Colodi is senior training specialist at I. B. M. He is a graduate of Carthage College in Carthage, Ill.

He is vice-president of the Men's Chapter, Kingston Presbyterian Church, and a member of the radio committee, Kingston Council of Churches. He is also manager of the Little League Yankees and coach of the V.F.W. team in the Babe Ruth League.

Last year Colodi acted as assistant training chairman. "Colodi has been carefully groomed for this vital position," according to Benjamin. "We know that the campaign organization can be effective only to the extent that everyone understands the Chest organization and his responsibilities therein. We are grateful that our training chairman possesses such unquestionable qualifications."

The training job is exceedingly time-consuming and requires considerable personal commitment. Realizing this, Colodi accepted the post because, in his words, "I feel that I owe my community a responsibility and an obligation.

"The community," Colodi adds, "is what I make it. I can't rely on someone else to do my share. By volunteering my services to the Chest I can help my neighbor. After all, the Chest unites many campaigns and provides the greatest good for the largest number of citizens requiring health, welfare, and recreation services."

The goal for this fall's Chest campaign is $223,000.

Van Aken's Rally Edges Sharpe at Woodstock

The angry young men at Woodstock Country Club are pressing old pro Bill Van Aken pretty hard these days.

The club champion was forced to fire a 3-under-par 32 on the back nine Sunday to overcome a 3-hole deficit and edge youthful Alex (Chippie) Sharpe, III, 2 and 1, in the semi-final round of the championship fight.

In first round action, Van Aken had experienced rough going before eliminating young John Knutson, 2 and 1.

Sharpe, son of Alex Sharpe Jr. of Central Hudson, flashed a hot putter to card even par 35 on the front nine to build up a three-hole lead over the veteran campaigner. But with the match and the title on the line, Van Aken once again demonstrated why he ranks among the all-time amateur golf greats in the mid-Hudson area.

Two Quick Birdies
On the 10th hole, he ran down a 20-footer for a birdie-3. On the par-4 second, his approach shot landed on the first level of the green, 40 feet below the cup. He rolled that one in for his second straight birdie and then squared the match with a par-4 on the third where Sharpe hit a poor approach shot.

After halves on the 13th and 14th holes, Van Aken went ahead for the first time during the match on the 15th where Sharpe 3-putted. Both got down in 4's on the 16th but the match ended on the par-4 seventeenth when Van Aken missed a birdie-3 from 3 feet but Sharpe carded a bogie 5.

Van Aken took only one hole—the seventh—on the front nine. Sharpe grabbed the second with a par one the 4th when Van Aken hit his tee shot out of

Defeat Is Blow To Pennant Hopes

The 35 Club plays the Elks Lodge at 6 p. m. this evening at Dietz Stadium and a victory would give it a tie with Hurley for the American division lead in the Babe Ruth League.

A defeat would be simply fatal for the 35 Club, as Hurley would take the bunting with a 9 and 6 record. If 35 Club wins, the playoff date for the American title will be announced later.

Kingston Patrolmen's Association dealt a heavy blow to American Legion hopes with a 12-10 victory over the weekend. The winners scored three runs in the top of the seventh, then checked a counter rally by the Legion after two runs were in.

The division standings:

K. P. A. used a six first inning as a cushion in the win over the Legion, although the three-run seventh was vital.

Frank McGowan was the batting star with a single, triple and home run. Rick Nelson slammed a single, double and homer. Bill Kilquist hit a single and triple for KPA. Ken Gilligan and Tim Bowns, a KPA pitcher, had doubles.

McGowan went the distance for the Legion and yielded 8 hits. Bowns, who relieved starter Jeff Lisman, was credited with the KPA victory.

Venturi Wins On 275 Score

By JOE MOOSHIL
AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ken Venturi's smashing five-stroke victory in the $50,000 American Golf Classic Sunday was doubly satisfying to golf's comeback king of 1964.

In addition to a $7,500 check, which boosted the national champion's earnings to $53,840, the triumph assured Venturi that his U.S. Open victory was no fluke.

The Classic was a big hurdle for Venturi. He missed the 54-hole cut in 1962 and last year he picked up a $110 check. But the long 7,165-yard Firestone Course finally yielded to him. His victory over Mason Rudolph came on a final round of 35-34—69 and a 275 total—one stroke better than the four-round record of 276 set by Arnold Palmer in 1962 and tied by Johnny Pott last year.

Venturi's only bogey Sunday came on the 18th and final hole. He started the round with a two-stroke lead over Rudolph. He boosted it to four strokes as he put together 11 straight pars and clinched the victory with a birdie two on the 12th hole while Rudolph was getting a bogey.

In a run for second place Rudolph with a 37-35—72 and 280 finished one stroke ahead of Palmer, who had 35-34—69 and 281.

Jack Nicklaus shot a final 36-73 to finish fourth with 285.

Kaufman, Turck Upset in Second Round Activity

Already assured of a new champion, Wiltwyck Country Club tournament observers are pondering the possibility of a brand new set of finalists in the 1964 tournament scheduled to reach its climax next Sunday.

In weekend, second round action, Leon Randall, a heavy favorite to win another title, had his hands full with Harold (Clancy) Van Aken before winning, 3 and 1. Randall shot even par-72 in posting his win.

Youthful Dan Gaffney of the Kingston High school team registered a major upset by winning 2 and 1 over former club champion, Bill Kaufman. The latter has just recovered from a hand injury which incapacitated him for six weeks. Gaffney's win, however, was unexpected.

Gaffney plays Randall in one semi-final match next Saturday, with the other an all-IBM showdown between W. H. (Bill) McCullen, the Wiltwyck golf champion, and Jim Penrose, IBM's Manager of Manufacturing.

McCullen turned in an eye-opening 3 and 1 upset over Charles (Jimmy) Turck, who had eliminated defending champion Harvey Bostic in first match play loss since he was beaten by Randall in the 1963 semi-finals. Penrose played up his potential in posting a 2 and 1 victory over lefty Bob Powers.

Junior Women's Swimming Champ

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Fourteen-year-old Danielle LeMoal of Fayetteville won the only national event in the Adirondack District AAU swimming meet held over the weekend here.

Danielle took the national junior women's 400-meter freestyle championship in 5 minutes and 58.4 seconds on Saturday night, the first day of the two-day meet.

Earlier in the day, she also captured the district 100-meter butterfly for girls 13 and 14 in 1:28.8.

Doubles Tennis Finals Today

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass. (AP) — Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston were out to retire the trophy today with a third consecutive victory in the National Doubles Tennis Championship, facing the first British team to reach the final since 1963.

McKinley and Ralston, the mainstays of the U.S. Davis Cup team that will defend its title in the Challenge Round at Cleveland next month, will be trying to become the first team to retire trophies since Bill Talbot and Gardner Mulloy did it in 1946.

McKinley, of San Antonio, Tex., and Ralston, of Bakersfield, Calif., advanced to the final Sunday with a 6-4, 6-2, 2-6, 12-10 triumph over fourth-seeded Frank Froehling of Miami and Charles Pasarell of San-ture, P.R.

Their opponents will be Mike Sangster and Graham Stillwell, who first completed a quarter-final match against Clark Griebner of Beachwood, Ohio, and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., winning 2-6, 22-20, 6-3, 8-10, 6-4.

The British duo then defeated two of their countrymen, Tim Phillips and Ray Weedon, 9-7, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

More Records?

FAIRFIELD, Conn. — (NEA) — Y. A. Tittle broke two of Bobby Layne's National Football League records last season and he could break two more this year.

Tittle has a good chance to surpass the records for most passes attempted and for most yards gained.

He needs just 165 passes to break Layne's mark of 3,700 and just 227 yards to crack the other record of 26,768.

Last season Tittle became the leader in touchdown passes (202) and total completions (1,971).

Sport Club Booters Defeat Huntington Kickers 2 to 1

2nd Half Goals Produce Victory

Kingston Sport Club booters prepped for their Labor Day weekend international contest by defeating Huntington Kickers, 2 to 1 in a Sunday exhibition at Oehler's Mountain Lodge. The islanders were scoreless until the last couple minutes of play.

Paced by their manager, Tony Alexander, who came out of semi-retirement to play a full game, the locals won with two goals in the second half. Alexander surprised by playing a full game and turning in an outstanding performance on defense.

Bill Nemershinsky accounted for both Kingston tallies. He took a fine corner kick from Alfredo Di Bella, outside left, at the 20-minute mark of the second period and booted it through the uprights. Fifteen minutes later, he picked up his second goal after some fancy footwork by the forward line.

Aspeling Hunt, center forward, accounted for Huntington's lone goal.

Kingston's reserves drubbed Huntington in the preliminary game, 7 to 1.

The feature game started in a heavy downpour and steady rains turned the playing field into a quagmire.

The lineup:
Kingston: G. — Lutzky; RFB — Roberts; LMB — Luzzi; RBH — Nemershinsky; CHB — Mycak; LHB — Alexander; OR — Fuchs; IR — Bustamante; CF — Nemershinsky; Mazula IL — A. DiBella; Weidner; Reserves: G. Brummer; Referee: H. Ulfig.

Defeat Is Blow To Pennant Hopes

The 35 Club plays the Elks Lodge at 6 p. m. this evening at Dietz Stadium and a victory would give it a tie with Hurley for the American division lead in the Babe Ruth League.

A defeat would be simply fatal for the 35 Club, as Hurley would take the bunting with a 9 and 6 record. If 35 Club wins, the playoff date for the American title will be announced later.

Kingston Patrolmen's Association dealt a heavy blow to American Legion hopes with a 12-10 victory over the weekend. The winners scored three runs in the top of the seventh, then checked a counter rally by the Legion after two runs were in.

The division standings:

K. P. A. used a six first inning as a cushion in the win over the Legion, although the three-run seventh was vital.

Frank McGowan was the batting star with a single, triple and home run. Rick Nelson slammed a single, double and homer. Bill Kilquist hit a single and triple for KPA. Ken Gilligan and Tim Bowens, a KPA pitcher, had doubles.

McGowan went the distance for the Legion and yielded 8 hits. Bowens, who relieved starter Jeff Lisman, was credited with the KPA victory.

Wills Asks Balk Rule Be Enforced

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two years ago Maury Wills of the Los Angeles Dodgers contemptuously paid a $50 fine to National League President Warren C. Giles with 5,000 pennies.

If anything, the little shortstop's respect for Giles has since diminished.

Wills, who has run his salary up to $50,000 largely by stealing bases, accused Giles Sunday of stealing excitement from fans and opportunity from good baserunners by failing to have the balk rule enforced.

In fact, Wills charged, the National League office has gone so far as to take money away from umpires who tried to enforce it.

Said Giles: "If Wills has a complaint, he should make it in writing. And he should get his facts straight before making public statements."

Giles did not elaborate.

Wills did. He said he had a long talk with an umpire recently and he told me the whole story.

"Last year the umpires who were calling all those balks early in the season were called into the National League office."

Wills said. "At first the league office had wanted the balk rule enforced. Then the umpires really started calling a lot of them and they were told to cut down."

This annoyed umpires, Wills said, because it placed them in the impossible position of having to judge not whether a pitcher was balking but "whether he was balking too much."

Wills said he learned one umpire "lost his Christmas bonus because he enforced the rule and I believe one also was cut in salary for the same reason."

The section of the balk rule that has caused perhaps the most trouble is the one providing that, with a runner or runners on base, a pitcher working from the set position must bring his hands to a stop before delivering a pitch.

Wills said the stop requirement is being ignored and this makes it difficult for the base stealer to decide when to take off.

Wills set a modern major league record in 1962 by stealing 104 bases.

The wrestling portion opens first on Monday with the top wrestlers still undecided on which division — freestyle or Greco-Roman — to compete in at Tokyo. Olympic rules allow an athlete to compete in only one division.

Bears-Packers
Duel Expected to Go Down to Wire

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

If Jon Arnett helps the Chicago Bears as much as Paul Hornung figures to hurt them, National Football League followers can expect another wire-to-wire duel in the NFL's Western Conference between the defending champion Bears and Hornung-hyped Green Bay Packers.

The Bears hope Arnett, one-time All-Pro halfback whom they acquired Sunday in a three-for-one deal with the Los Angeles Rams, will add a breakthrough threat to their light-weight offense that was further weakened last month by the tragic death of Willie Galtimore. Chicago's offensive shortcomings were pinpointed Saturday night when the Packers and Hornung wrecked the Bears 21-7 in an exhibition game at Milwaukee.

The Bears didn't get untracked until Hornung, showing no signs of a year's inactivity, had run for two touchdowns, caught a scoring pass and kicked three extra points for a 21-0 lead. A fourth quarter touchdown pass from second string quarterback Rudy Bukich to Gary Barnes averted a shut-out.

Cleveland ripped Pittsburgh 42-7; Washington tripped the New York Giants 27-24; Minnesota stayed unbeaten with a 24-21 victory over San Francisco; the Rams defeated Dallas 25-16 and Detroit topped Philadelphia 17-13 in other NFL weekend tilts.

The New York Jets nipped Boston 21-20; San Diego beat Kansas City 26-14 and Oakland outscored Buffalo 34-31 in American Football League action.

Arnett, 29-year-old veteran of eight NFL seasons, was hobbled last year by a knee injury but the speedster from Southern California says he is healthy and anxious to play in Chicago.

The Rams prided offensive guard Roger Davis, a 1963 regular center Joe Wendrychowski and rookie defensive back Frank Budka from the Bears in exchange for Arnett.

Spa Races Will End Saturday

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y.

(AP)—Eleven fillies and mares vied today in the $25,000-added Diana Handicap as Saratoga's thoroughbred racing season entered its final week.

Snow Scene, with Manny Yeaza part of 115 pounds assigned here, was the morning line favorite at 3-1. Top-weighted at 118 and listed at 4-1 was Tona, followed by Bateau and Walz Song with 116 pounds.

The 1½-mile Diana is for fillies and mares, 3 years old and older.

The four-week season at the Spa race track winds up Saturday with the $75,000-added Hopeful Stakes for 2-year-olds.

Quadrangle strengthened his bid for the 2-year-old title Saturday when he won the $80,000 Travers Stakes here over a sloppy track.

The son of Cohoes sped the mile-and-a-quarter in 2:04 2-5 and paid $2.60. Knightly Manner finished second, and Hill Rise, third.

A. C.'s Jennie Is Winner at MR

MONTICELLO, Aug. 22—Taking the lead just before the quarter pole, A. C.'s Jennie posted a near wire-to-wire victory to win Saturday's Senator James J. Dunnigan trot for three-year fillies at Monticello Raceway.

Driven by Sanders Russell, one of the respected veterans of the business, the Victory Song filly splashed to a length and a quarter triumph over a mud-splattered track, going the mile in 2:09 and collecting the major portion of the $11,183 purse money.

Russell made a move after Speedy Victory and Bob Walker, the 4-5 favorite, just after the first turn, finally catching the horse only yards away from the quarter pole.

After a 32.3 quarter and a 1:05.4 half, the pace picked up in the third quarter. Speedy Victory took to the outside and made a run at the winner. However, after almost drawing even, she couldn't gain any more ground and was a decisive loser when the horses hit the finish line.

Third, six lengths behind the second horse, was Brisk Hanover. Following the top three were Front Me and Caricon, which broke twice during the race.

In posting her fourth victory of the season and running her earnings to over the $30,000 mark, A. C.'s Jennie paid $5.70, $2.70 and $2.30. Speedy Victory returned $2.60 and $2.30 for place and Brisk Hanover paid $2.50.

The time of 2:09 was good, considering the fact that the half-mile track was a quagmire of mud, an all-day rain having begun early in the morning.

Paying a Price

HOUSTON — (NEA) — A

commercial real estate firm has estimated the value of the Houston Oilers' practice field at $2,500,000.

This caused one enterprising player to figure that every divot kicked up is worth 75 cents. Linemen, he said, eat about a quarter's worth each day.

Even Years Best for Brooks
Phils' Allen Boosts MVP BidOriole Slugger
Has .308 Mark
22 HRs, 88 RBI

By MURRAY CHASS

Associated Press Sports Writer

It's odd, but Brooks Robinson is at his best in even-numbered years.

This year he's better than ever and has a better than even chance of being named the American League's most valuable player — if Baltimore wins the pennant.

Robinson tried to see to that, sparking the Orioles to three victories in four weekend games with Chicago. Baltimore won their third straight 7-3 Sunday before the White Sox salvaged the second game of the double-header 3-1.

The split left the Orioles 1½ games ahead of the White Sox, who led by one-half game before the series started.

Robinson lashed three hits in Sunday's opener, scoring two runs, and drove in the Orioles' lone run in the second game. In the previous two games, Robinson knocked in two runs in Friday's 4-2 triumph and slammed a three-run homer that won Saturday's game by the same score.

Average Now .308

His over-all performance, eight hits in 16 times at bat, increased the 27-year-old third baseman's batting average seven points to .308, his home run total to 22 and his runs batted in to 85.

Robinson reached his best RBI mark in 1960 when he drove in 88 runs. He dipped to 61 the next season but rose to 86 in 1962 when he also hit 23 homers and batted .303, his best marks in those categories prior to this season.

But the oddity struck again as he plummeted to a .251 average last year with only 11 homers and 67 RBIs.

In other AL games Sunday, New York edged Boston 4-3, Cleveland took Los Angeles 6-4 and 3-2, Washington lost to Kansas City 3-1 before winning 8-5 and Minnesota nipped Detroit 6-5, then lost 5-2.

One of Robinson's three hits in the opener was a key single in the Orioles' four-run outburst in the fifth inning. It was another Robinson, Earl, who singled in two of the runs. The rally helped rookie Wally Bunker to his 13th victory against only three defeats.

14th for Peters

Gary Peters pitched the White Sox to the second game triumph, scattering seven hits for his 14th victory in 21 decisions. Chicago scored all of their runs in the seventh. Floyd Robinson triggered the rally with a single and eventually scored on a wild throw by Sam Bowers.

Johnny Blanchard and Mickey Mantle each drove in two runs as the Yankees continued their recovery from a six-game losing streak. Blanchard brought in Roger Maris with sacrifice flies in the sixth and in the eighth, while Mantle unloaded a two-run homer in the third.

Bob Tillman doubled and scored for Boston in the seventh and homered in the ninth.

Cleveland swept its second straight doubleheader from the Angels. Rookie Luis Tiant pitched a six-hitter for his seventh victory in nine decisions in the opener. Bob Chance belted three hits and drove in two runs for the Indians.

Torres Hits Homer

John Romano singled across two runs in Cleveland's three-run third in the nightcap. The rally was aided by pitcher Dan Osinski's throwing error. Felix Torres homered for the Angels.

Willie Kirkland led the Senators to their second-game victory over the Athletics, fashing a two-run single in a five-run fourth inning and slamming a solo homer in the seventh.

John Wyatt preserved Diego Segui's victory in the first game, striking out pinch hitters Don Zimmer and Chuck Hinton with the tying runs on base in the ninth inning. Bill Bryan homered for the Athletics' decisive run in a two-run fifth.

Hank Aguirre won his third game of the season and his first since July 1, stopping the Twins on five hits in the second game. Bill Freehan hit two homers and Gates Brown and Don Demeter one each for the Tigers.

Tony Oliva's run-scoring single in the ninth inning won the opener for the Twins after Don Mincher tied the game in the eighth with a grand slam homer. Jerry Lumpe and Dick McAuliffe clouted two-run homers for Detroit.

Barbara McIntire
Sights Curtis Cup

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) —

Barbara McIntire, fresh from her second victory in the U.S. Women's Amateur Golf tournament, turns now to the Curtis Cup match to be played in South Wales Sept. 11-12.

Miss McIntire, from Colorado Springs, defeated Joe Anne Gunderson of Kirkland, Wash., 3 and 2 in the 36-hole finals of the 64th women's tournament Saturday at Prairie Dunes Country Club. Miss Gunderson had won the tournament three times previously and Miss McIntire won in 1959.

Swim-O-Links, Marquette's
Battle to 4-4 Tie in Eight

Swim-O-Links of Woodstock and Marquette Cement battled to an 8-inning, 4-4, tie in the Saugerties Babe Ruth League. The game was called because of darkness.

The Woodstock nine tied the score with two runs in the bottom of the sixth. Marquette's Fred Serravallo pitched a 5-hitter and John Howland of Woodstock yielded seven. The latter nipped two incipient Marquette threats by picking runners off base in the sixth and seventh innings.

Serravallo had seven strikeouts.

Olson-Thornton
Fight on Friday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bobo Olson, once a regular performer on network television fights, takes on Wayne Thornton at San Francisco Friday night in probably his final fighting appearance before the TV cameras.

After the Olson-Thornton light heavyweight clash, only two more Friday night fights will be shown on home television. The contract between Madison Square Garden and the ABC network ends with the Sept. 11 fight, closing the 26-year run of network television's oldest continuous show.

The 25-year-old Thornton, who was beaten by Olson last March, gained the return bout as a substitute for light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano. Pastrano had to undergo minor surgery.

Olson blew a title shot at Pastrano when he was beaten by young Johnny Persol at New York June 19. Instead of a title bout, he was given a non-title bout with Pastrano. Now he has to settle for Thornton.

Bobo, a pro since Nov. 23, 1945, has an 88-14-2 record, including 40 knockouts. The former middleweight champion is ranked seventh among the light heavies by the World Boxing Association, and sixth by Ring.

Thornton, of Fresno, Calif., is ranked second by the WBA and fifth by Ring. His record is 31-6-1, including 19 knockouts. He jumped high in the 175-pound division on his upset of top-ranked Eddie Cotton.

Rome Eliminated in Pony League Tourney

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) —

Greensboro, N.C., will represent the eastern division in the Pony League World Series opening Wednesday in San Diego, Calif.

The Greensboro nine nailed down the berth by defeating Rome, N.Y., 11-1 for the eastern division title Saturday night. Barry Councilman stopped the New Yorkers on two hits and contributed a bases-empty homer to the attack.

thoroughbred racing season entered its final week.
Snow Scene, with Manny Yeazra part of 115 pounds assigned her, was the morning line favorite at 3-1. Top-weighted at 118 and listed at 4-1 was Tona, followed by Batture and Waltz Song with 116 pounds.
The 14-mile Diana is for fillies and mares, 3 years old and older.

The four-week season at the Spa race track winds up Saturday with the $75,000-added
Hopeful Stakes for 2-year-olds.
Quadrangle strengthened his bid for the 3-year-old title Saturday when he won the $80,050 Travers Stakes here over a sloppy track.

The son of Cohoes sped the mile-and-a-quarter in 2:04.2-5 and paid $2.60. Knightly Manner finished second, and Hill Rise, third.

A. C.'s Jennie Is Winner at MR

MONTICELLO, Aug. 22—Taking the lead just before the quarter pole, A. C.'s Jennie posted a near wire-to-wire victory to win Saturday's Senator James J.
Dunnigan trot for three-year-fillies at Monticello Raceway.

Driven by Sanders Russell, one of the respected veterans of the business, the Victory Song filly splashed to a length and a quarter triumph over a mud-splattered track, going the mile in 2:09 and collecting the major portion of the $11,183 purse money.

Russell made a move after Speedy Victory and Bob Walker, the 4-5 favorite, just after the first turn, finally catching the horse only yards away from the quarter pole.

After a 32.3 quarter and a 1:05.4 half, the pace picked up in the third quarter. Speedy Victory took to the outside and made a run at the winner. However, after almost drawing even, she couldn't gain any more ground and was a decisive loser when the horses hit the finish line.

Third, six lengths behind the second horse, was Brisk Hanover. Following the top three were Front Me and Caricon, which broke twice during the race.

In posting her fourth victory of the season and running her earnings to over the $30,000 mark, A. C.'s Jennie paid $3.70, $2.70 and $2.30. Speedy Victory returned $2.60 and $2.30 for place and Brisk Hanover paid $2.50.

The time of 2:09 was good, considering the fact that the half-mile track was a quagmire of mud, an all-day rain having begun early in the morning.

Even Years Best for Brooks
Phils' Allen Boosts MVP BidOriole Slugger
Has .308 Mark
22 Hrs. 88 RBI

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer
It's odd, but Brooks Robinson is at his best in even-numbered years.

This year he's better than ever and has a better than even chance of being named the American League's most valuable player — if Baltimore wins the pennant.

Robinson tried to see to that, sparking the Orioles to three victories in four weekend games with Chicago. Baltimore won their third straight 7-3 Sunday before the White Sox salvaged the second game of the doubleheader 3-1.

The split left the Orioles 1½ games ahead of the White Sox, who led by one-half game before the series started.
Robinson lashed three hits in Sunday's opener, scoring two runs, and drove in the Orioles' lone run in the second game. In the previous two games, Robinson knocked in two runs in Friday's 4-2 triumph and slammed a three-run homer that won Saturday's game by the same score.

Average Now .308
His over-all performance, eight hits in 16 times at bat, increased the 27-year-old third baseman's batting average seven points to .308, his home run total to 22 and his runs batted in to 85.

Robinson reached his best RBI mark in 1960 when he drove in 88 runs. He dipped to 61 the next season but rose to 86 in 1962 when he also hit 23 homers and batted .303, his best marks in those categories prior to this season.

But the oddity struck again as he plummeted to a .251 average last year with only 11 homers and 67 RBI.

In other AL games Sunday,
New York edged Boston 4-3,
Cleveland took Los Angeles 6-4 and 3-2, Washington lost to Kansas City 3-1 before winning 8-5 and Minnesota nipped Detroit 6-5, then lost 5-2.

One of Robinson's three hits in the opener was a key single in the Orioles' four-run outburst in the fifth inning. It was another Robinson, Earl, who singled in two of the runs. The rally helped rookie Wally Bunker to his 12th victory against only three defeats.

11th for Peters
Gary Peters pitched the White Sox to the second - game triumph, scattering seven hits for his 14th victory in 21 decisions.
Chicago scored all of their runs in the seventh. Floyd Robinson triggered the rally with a single and eventually scored on a wild throw by Sam Bowers.

Johnny Blanchard and Mickey Mantle each drove in two runs as the Yankees continued their recovery from a six-game losing streak. Blanchard brought in Roger Maris with sacrifice flies in the sixth and in the eighth while Mantle unloaded a two-run homer in the third.

Bob Tiltman doubled and scored for Boston in the seventh and homered in the ninth.
Cleveland swept its second straight doubleheader from the Angels. Rookie Luis Tiant pitched a six-hitter for his seventh victory in nine decisions in the opener. Bob Chance belted three hits and drove in two runs for the Indians.

Torres Hits Homer
John Romano singled across two runs in Cleveland's three-run third in the nightcap. The rally was aided by pitcher Dan Osinski's throwing error. Felix Torres homered for the Angels.
Willie Kirkland led the Senators to their second-game victory over the Athletics, lashing a two-run single in a five-run fourth inning and slamming a solo homer in the seventh.

John Wyatt preserved Diego Segui's victory in the first game, striking out pinch hitters Don Zimmer and Chuck Hinton with the tying runs on base in the ninth inning. Bill Bryan homered for the Athletics' decisive run in a two-run fifth.

2 in the 36-hole finals of the urday at Prairie Dunes Country

Slams 2 Homers
As Leaders Top
Pirates, 9 to 3

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
Richie Allen, Philadelphia's hard-hitting third baseman, wears orange shoes, four-button suits and sports jackets with buckles in the back.

Now he's trying to stick a couple of feathers in his cap.
A leading contender for both Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player honors, the stand-out dresser and outstanding third baseman belted two homers and a single, driving in four runs Sunday as the National League leading Phillies walloped Pittsburgh 9-3.

The performance lifted Allen's batting average to .313, gave him 23 homers and 66 runs batted in, and once again shot him front and center as a distinct possibility to become the first rookie in major league history to win the MVP award.

Allen, whose chief competition for MVP honors might come from teammates John (All-Star Hero) Callison and Jim (Perfect Game) Bunning, hit a two-run homer against the Pirates in the third inning, hit a solo homer in the fifth and singled home a run in the eighth.

11th for Bunning Bunning, who went seven innings, benefited from the support, bringing his record to 14-4 with a 2.17 earned run average despite being tagged for homers by Roberto Clemente and Donn Clendenen.

The victory boosted the Phillies lead to 7½ games over Cincinnati and San Francisco. The Reds lost to the Los Angeles Dodgers and Phil Ortega's three-hitter 1-0 while the Giants edged St. Louis 3-2 in 10 innings.
In other games, the New York Mets won a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs 2-1 in 10 innings and 5-4 and Houston beat Milwaukee 7-1 in a night game.

Long Drought
Ortega, who hadn't pitched a complete game since May 19, brought his record to 6-5 by keeping the Reds in check. The Dodgers, meanwhile, scored their only run against Jim O'Toole, 13-6, in the second inning on a double by Nate Oliver and Dick Tracewski's single.
The Cardinals pulled into a tie with the Giants on Lou Brock's homer in the eighth but lost it in the 10th when Jesus Alou scored from third on Dal Maxville's error.

Also started the inning with a single, moved up on a bunt, raced to third on Tom Haller's long fly and scored when Max-ville let Harvey Kuenn's grounder get away from him.

The Mets won the opener in the 10th after George Altman led off with a double and took third on a grounder. Ron Hunt and Joe Christopher then were walked intentionally, setting up a force at any base, but Ed Kranepool ruined the strategy with a well-placed single to left.
The Cubs tried the same thing in the ninth inning of the nightcap and again lost while the Mets won their seventh in eighth games. Bobby Klaus singled and wound up on third with one out. Christopher and Altman were walked purposely, but one out later, Charlie Smith singled in the clincher.

Larsen, who hadn't pitched a complete game since July 2, 1959 when he was with the New York Yankees, allowed the Braves only five hits and retired 18 batters in a row at one stretch as the Colts scored their third straight over the Braves.

Swim-O-Links, Marquette's
Battle to 4-4 Tie in Eight

Swim-O-Links of Woodstock and Marquette Cement battled to an 8-inning, 4-4, tie in the Saugerties Babe Ruth League.
The game was called because of darkness.

The Woodstock nine tied the score with two runs in the bottom of the sixth. Marquette's Fred Serravallo pitched a 5-hitter and John Howland of Woodstock yielded seven. The latter nipped two incipient Marquette threats by picking runners off base in the sixth and seventh innings.

Serravallo had seven strikeouts.

Olson-Thornton
Fight on Friday
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bobo Olson, once a regular performer on network television fights, takes on Wayne Thornton at San Francisco Friday night in probably his final fighting appearance before the TV cameras.

After the Olson-Thornton light heavyweight clash, only two more Friday night fights will be shown on home television. The contract between Madison Square Garden and the ABC networks ends with the Sept. 11 fight, closing the 20-year run of network television's oldest continuous show.

The 25-year-old Thornton, who was beaten by Olson last March, gained the return bout as a substitute for light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano. Pastrano had to undergo minor surgery.

Olson blew a title shot at Pastrano when he was beaten by young Johnny Persol at New York June 19. Instead of a title bout, he was given a non-title bout with Pastrano. Now he has to settle for Thornton.

Bobo, a pro since Nov. 23, 1945, has an 88-14-2 record, including 40 knockouts. The former middleweight champion is ranked seventh among the light heavies by the World Boxing Association, and sixth by Ring.

Thornton, of Fresno, Calif., is ranked second by the WBA and fifth by Ring. His record is 31-6-1, including 19 knockouts. He jumped high in the 175-pound division on his upset of top-ranking Eddie Cotton.

$50 Million Damage Worst Hurricane Headed Toward Jamaica Today

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Cleo, worst hurricane of the season, raged across the Caribbean toward Jamaica today, leaving behind a path of death and destruction.

The storm swirled past southern Puerto Rico Sunday after battering the Guadalupe Islands. Officials blamed Cleo for at least 14 deaths, 100 injuries and $50 million in damage to the French possession.

Cleo will probably strike Jamaica tonight with hurricane force, the Weather Bureau said. Gale force winds and heavy rain pounded the southern coast of the Dominican Republic early today. Small but powerful Cleo, with 140-mile center winds, pressed onward south of the island of Hispaniola, which the Dominican Republic shares with Haiti.

The Weather Bureau said that Cleo's 125-mile wide mass of hurricane force winds apparently would skirt Hispaniola's heartland. The storm was headed toward Haiti's southern peninsula, where thousands were killed last year by Hurricane Flora.

Cleo also might strike Cuba with its fury intact, the Weather Bureau said. It was too early to say whether it would pose any danger to the U.S. mainland.

Cleo was centered at 4 a.m., ed, about 125 miles southwest of Santo Domingo City, moving on a path between west and west-northwest about 17 m.p.h.

Rainfall Adds Up To 0.15 in City, More in County

Heavy, drenching rain fell on widely scattered areas of Ulster County during the weekend with only 0.15 total inches recorded by Kingston City Engineer's Office for Saturday and Sunday.

However 0.52 total inches were recorded from 8 a.m. Friday to 8 a.m. today at Ashokan Reservoir Gatehouse.

The Associated Press reported that although the rainfall was heavy in some Upstate areas, drought-parched farmlands that needed it most got the least — and no additional rain was expected today.

More than 6 inches of rain soaked into the Adirondack region, while sections of Northern, Central and Western New York also received substantial rainfall.

From Friday morning through Sunday night, however, total rainfall measured only .81 inches in the Albany area and even less in the lower Hudson Valley. Poughkeepsie reported .03 and Newburgh only a trace.

Farmers in the Hudson Valley have been among those hardest hit by the summer-long drought. Albany and 19 other counties in the state have been declared drought-disaster areas because of crop damage from the drought.

The heaviest rainfall over the weekend was at the Adirondack hamlet of Hofmeister, in Hamilton County, where 6.15 inches fell from Friday morning to Sunday morning.

During the same period, 4.29 inches were reported at Hincley in Oneida County, 4.06 at Indian Lake in Hamilton County and 3.17 at Riverbank in Warren County.

A return to generally fair weather with partial cloudiness and seasonable warm temperatures was forecast for today.

Fino Says Keating Will Endorse Barry

NEW YORK (AP)—Rep. Paul A. Fino, Bronx County Republican chairman, predicts that GOP Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of Rochester will change his mind and endorse the Goldwater-Miller ticket before the state Republican committee meets here Aug. 31.

The committee is scheduled to nominate Keating for a second term.

Fino, who made his prediction Sunday on a radio program, said his own announced candidacy for the Senate nomination is designed to force Keating's hand and unite the state GOP.

Men Still Do Not Know When Or Where Hurricanes Will Form

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—When the white man came to the New World, the Indian told him about the tigerish tempest that often sprang unprovoked upon islanders of the tropical Atlantic. They called the storm "huracan."

Christopher Columbus learned first-hand. He was leading his second expedition in 1494 when a hurricane struck the settlement of Isabella on Santo Domingo. Columbus lost eight of his nine ships.

Columbus grew weather-wise, as did the Indians, but eyes and ears were their sole instruments.

Some Signs
Today, man has radar, airplanes and satellites but men still don't know when or where hurricanes will form, although the forecasts are detectable over broad expanses of the hemisphere.

After sticky, humid weather, the easterly winds blow more briskly, the rains fall more frequently. Fishermen note the fish bite more recklessly. They crowd into passes and tidewater streams.

The surf's pulse slows. Long swells slide smoothly ashore six times a minute instead of the normal 10 or 11.

The wind turns north-north-easterly. Gusts rise to 30 or 35 miles an hour. The sea is turbulent. The surf runs wild and clamorous. Brief rain squalls slash and run. The sky darkens.

Then the hurricane strikes. Gordon E. Dunn, chief storm forecaster in the Miami Weather Bureau, said observers will concentrate on trying to obtain data on the formation of hurricanes.

Dunn expects the satellite Nimbus, to be launched Friday, to send back revealing pictures of cloud formations and provide daylight photographs of the equator every 24 hours.

Still Year Away
Tires satellites have provided interesting pictures of clouds and have spotted hurricanes but they were not oriented as Nimbus will be. A weather satellite system is still a year or two away, Dunn said.

The Navy, Air Force and automatic buoys keep a check on hurricanes in the Atlantic, Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico. These forces have been beefed up for the 1964 storm season.

The Navy, operating from Jacksonville, and Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico, again will use Super Constellations. These 70-ton flying laboratories, with crews of 28 to 30 men, can remain aloft for 21 hours. They have been in use since 1958 for low level penetration into the eye of the hurricane as well as for spotting the big storms.

While main hurricane months are August, September and October, these devastating storms have occurred at other times and Cleo is the fourth this season. In June one formed in the Gulf of Mexico, moved across north Florida and into the Atlantic, with winds of 50 to 60 miles per hour.

In late July a storm formed near the Leeward Islands and passed not far from Bermuda. It had winds of hurricane force — 74 miles an hour — for one day and maritime advisories were issued.

The first tropical storm to be given a name this season, Abby, formed quickly in the Gulf of Mexico and moved inland along the middle Texas coast Aug. 7, packing winds up to 60 miles per hour in squalls near the center.

Four Men Blown To Bits by 22 Dynamite Sticks

MEEKER, Colo. (AP) — Twenty-two sticks of dynamite exploded while four men worked on a flatbed truck preparing it for use in casing a north-western Colorado oil well.

The blast "blew the men to pieces," Undersheriff Bob Kracht said.

An oil company representative discovered the bodies Sunday. Kracht said the tragedy may have occurred either Friday or Saturday.

Strewn along the bank of Pinnacle Creek, 50 miles southwest of Meeker, were the 22 dynamite wrappers.

The man, all from Vernal, Utah, were Charles McConkie, 35, his son Duane, 16, Robert Hatch, 27, and Houtz Ross, 44.
